From the Boston Ere'y Transcript, May 7, '91.

by Walt Whitman in his own quite utterly dilapidated physical case, is, a "little spark of soul dragging a great lummux of corpse-body clumsily to and fro around."

Couldn't remember distincte enough to outher riscete the Desk (the pict: herdry returned as your note seems to involve) - but I know I had a good time in the Times - I heartly send my best respects I love to the boys one I all now there - I send my lash photo: Task it up if you like on the wall you all that Con; gregute. Malt Thutman

An uncollected Whitman letter to Alexander Black. See p. 63.
