for Tom

One bright day in the middle of the night
Two dead boys got up to fight.
Back to back they faced each other
Drew their swords and shot one another.
A deaf policeman heard the noise
And ran to save the two dead boys.
If you don't believe me that it's true,
Go ask the blind man
He saw it, too.

THE FIGURES

Jump ropes twirling
One finger taps the watch face
Keeping time

here. you walk toward us on delicately folded pages.

Oklahoma grain fields
Open farmlands
Hand and foot games
Just-have-faiths

turn on the lights,
open the window out.

we have shared stories and shared pacts we agree on.

white scars circle our wrists like flowers
promises

Go-on-outside-now
Hush-now-kids
Double dutch

there is dust on the horizon as your stories gallop away.

Shy laughter
Runs around the room
Freeze! tag

Tiny tooth gap
A wide smile opens up
Hips swaying

The sink where we wash our hands
Sports a hairline crack
I slip through the blue porcelain
Turned grey
As the soap suds down
Watch the bubbles
In the courtyard
Little girls play magic with
Their memories
The jacks splay the pavement,
Dancing.

Outside the fence
She waves to us
One blade of grass

shorty

Mamma
Mz. Thang
Hey lady Beautiful.
Albino mane
Stones throw
Sway those hips
Toss it.

Polished floors
One square of sunshine
Bare feet dancing

The Rules of the Land
Are Specific enough,
Princess,
Toss that book out the window.
Risk it all
For a Subway sandwich

A folding chair
On the basketball court
Legs crossed

The grownups take my small voice
And put it in a cup
We tie the ends with string
Walking the telephone out
Our voices sing red plastic
While Grandma's eggs are cooking

All you have to do is look at me to see this.

Figure 13. Dara

In five different plays
You read the child
Running after your sisters
Watcha' doingtakemewithyoucan I come?
You walk like a playground swing
Sway sway the wind
The children are laughing
Give them a ride.
On stage it's a merry-go-round
Carriage horses pass on rollers
Mirrors spin the audience
Hop scotch in my pocket.

little girl, jump, jump
two pigtails sideways
dandelion puffs

Figure 15. Faith

END NOTES

Since March 2010 I have been working with a group of women inmates in a collaborative arts ensemble. Together, we form a group we call The Eva Luna Project. We write plays together; we perform them. Our work is built directly from personal story. We work with the unspoken, the low-decibel, the cannot-tell. We speak these things out loud.

What does it mean to listen?

What does it take to be heard?

This book is a collection of my responses to silence, laughter, freeze tag and double-dutch. Sonia keeps time, Lucy runs around the room, Samara tells a story. We begin. Some days we fall over laughing; others, we walk across a silenced darkness, tossing ropes to one another.

What we have found, together, is that there is power and resonance in the sheer act of speaking. We tell what hasn't been told, what isn't spoken, because speaking forms the ground we stand on.

These poems are what have grown from that ground.
