To the mindful.

War is hell, but that's not the half of it, because war is also mystery and terror and adventure and courage and discovery and holiness and pity and despair and longing and love. War is nasty; war is fun. War is thrilling; war is drudgery. War makes you a man; war makes you dead.

PREFACE

There was Chicago and the 22 bus and the shoe-shine man who got on in Lincoln Park, plopped down, pulled shoe-shine things from a duffel bag and set right to shining shoe after shoe. And after every pair: “A dollar?” And the people with their freshly-shined shoes: “I don’t have any cash. Sorry.” And the shoe-shine man: “That’s okay, brother/sister. God bless you.”

There were late night PBS specials. And Sweet Honey in the Rocks. And Peter, Paul, and Mary.

There was Joe Brainard and I Remember. And something like, “I remember feeling sorry for black people, not because of what they were going through but because they were ugly.” And a question from the front of the room, a question for me and only me: “Any thoughts about that? That line in particular. How did that line make you feel?” And then a bit of waiting while I looked around for my wit.

There was summer and Virginia and the beach and the waves and almost drowning but Annie never let go.

There was Vietnam in books. And this war and that war. And is war just? And is justice fair? And is there poetry there? Anywhere? In pockets, around certain corners? On buses? In gardens? On Sundays? And there where? And there why? And says who? And—we should talk about it more. Why don’t we talk about war?

There was fourth grade and a field trip and the Biltmore Estate. And the winery out back. But grape juice. Because fourth grade. And, “Richie Rich was filmed here.” And, “Macaulay Culkin stood here, right here, and held this railing just so.”

There was Betty, 93 years strong. And the church on Wellington Avenue. And an oral history interview for the Chicago Anti-Apartheid Movement Collection. And ninety minutes in, the death penalty. And Betty had been writing letters to politicians for years. Because the politicians. Because mitigating circumstances. Because, “No pity.” And,

Was I an activist? “Um—” And Betty: “Will you be when you get out of school and don’t have all the books and papers to do?” And me: “I think— I think I would love that.”¹

THIS IS NOT A WAR PLAY | THIS IS A WAR PLAY (A MEDITATION)

Prologue.

(Delta and Juliett wait for Echo to set up a camera. This will be a portrait of Delta, Juliett, and Echo. Recorded audio: Echo, age 8, and her mother:

ECHO, AGE 8

Mom? You look tired. Are you tired?

Mom, can we go to the desert?

Mom, you're far away again.

MOTHER

What's in the desert?

Ants. Duh.

MOTHER

Ants?

ECHO, AGE 8

Not desert ants. The regular ones. They just crawled to the desert. They're visiting their cousins to say goodbye and stuff before they head off to the war.

MOTHER

What are regular ants?

Like red ones.

MOTHER

Red ants are regular?

ECHO, AGE 8

Yes. No, I'm saying they can be red.

MOTHER

But they don't have to be?

Mom.

MOTHER

I'm trying to understand.

I'm saying any ant is regular. But some regular ants are red. Get it?

(Echo sets the timer and joins her sisters for the portrait. They arrange and rearrange themselves.)

MOTHER

We can go to the desert.

ECHO, AGE 8

We should take the girls. And we should take their pictures.

Because, you know why? They're not going to be babies forever.

Mom?

MOTHER

Go. Go get dressed.

ECHO, AGE 8

And wake the babies?

MOTHER

Gently. Be nice.

(They freeze. The camera flashes. Blackout.)

1. Charlie & November

(Door Museum.)

CHARLIE

And we're back where we started.

NOVEMBER

The red door. I remember.

CHARLIE

Good.

NOVEMBER

You know a lot about doors.

CHARLIE

You don't run a door museum for half of your life without picking up a few things.

This is the main door. Been here since the house was built. A while.
We paint it every year just for good measure. No creaking just yet. Not just yet.

NOVEMBER

Not just yet.

CHARLIE

(as a tour guide)

This—is a door. As you can see, it is a wooden door. I'll tell you something about this door. There's a man behind this door. He has a sword. A samurai sword to be exact. On his sword is a wooden sheath. It was his father's. By it, I refer of course to the sword. The sheath was his mother's. It was a gift from her mother who won it in a poker game. In the interest of full disclosure, I feel I must tell you—she cheated. In her defense, she had no idea how to play poker, and if she had any intention of winning, cheating was very nearly her only option. The gentleman who owned the sheath was a handsome young soldier from out of town. His wife's name was Elisabeth and sometimes they went hunting and the soldier thought of—accidentally—well— To be fair, she was terribly petty. And anyway, she was in love with a man named Charles. Charles was not a soldier, but he did save a woman's life once. Anyway, Charles grew up in a large house at the edge of the lake. It was his mother's house and she liked to paint pictures of animals with the heads of other animals. Take a moment, if you will, to imagine what a pig might look like with a horse's head. Yes? Or a turtle with the head of a sheep. Okay? Or a slug with the head of a penguin. Right? Imagine, if you will, a squid with the head of a duck. Hm? And you will have a fair idea of Charles' mother's portraits. Until Charles was born, his mother shared her home with an older woman who reminded her of her own dear old mother—with her dark hair and droopy eyes that would often fill to overflowing when sad songs played on the radio. The old woman was married once and her only daughter worked as a schoolteacher. Most of her students thought she smelled strange—like a man's cologne or grapes and onions or a tuna fish sandwich—but no one would ever tell her so. Edward sat in the front row and most days he slept straight through the old woman's class—but he went on to become a lawyer anyway. I say this, of course, to say—

(Charlie knocks on the red door, looks at November.)

NOVEMBER

(suddenly a tour guide himself)

There's a man behind this door. He has a sword.

CHARLIE

Good. So. You know. The job is yours if you want it. You seem like a good kid.

NOVEMBER

I try to be.

CHARLIE

And a hard worker.

NOVEMBER

I am. I just—

CHARLIE

The main thing is this: On the other side of every door is a story and it matters; there are people and they matter. You see? Takes time is all. It's like— You learn.

2. Delta & Juliett

(Juliett's dorm room.)

DELTA

I thought you had a roommate.

JULIETT

She moved out.

DELTA

No wonder. This place used to be spotless.

JULIETT

Yeah it doesn't matter anymore.
Thanks for dinner. It was—good.

DELTA

I'm glad.

(A moment.)

JULIETT

Half the hall's cleared out actually. People are staying in their friend's rooms. After mom died it was all, "You want to get dinner sometime?" All, "If you want to talk or something—" But, a couple hundred journalists write a couple thousand articles about your screwed up family and how your dad might or might not have killed a bunch of people a long time ago and all of a sudden, everybody's like— I mean, I get it, I guess.

DELTA

People suck.

JULIETT

They're sending me home at the end of the month. Until the end of the term. They're making me take a break.

DELTA

Why? What did you do?

JULIETT

Nothing. They're just like—

(as the dean)

“Just take some time. Lay low for a while. Come back when this whole thing with your father blows over. It's nothing personal.”

DELTA

They can't do that.

JULIETT

(as the dean)

“It's nothing personal, but considering the trouble at your last school we can't really afford to have—”

DELTA

You're a good student. That is all that matters. Did you tell her that?

JULIETT

Yeah, I told her that.

DELTA

Do you want me to talk to her?

JULIETT

No.

(Pause.)

DELTA

I'm proud of you, Juliett. I don't ever tell you that, but I am. Even with all of this going on, you've been so— And I know I haven't been around much for you or Echo since mom died. We all deal with things differently but—

JULIETT

I got this letter yesterday. I think he meant it for you but they didn't know where to find you so they sent it here. Came in the mail.

DELTA

Who?

JULIETT

It's got dad's name on it.

Let me see. DELTA

Is it true? JULIETT

Is what true? DELTA

The letter. JULIETT

I don't know what it says. —Did you—read my mail? DELTA

It came to me. JULIETT

But it had my name on it? DELTA

It's a lot of trouble to go through to mail a letter. Not a lot of people would go through all that trouble for something they just made up. JULIETT

But it wasn't for you. DELTA

It came to me. JULIETT

Did it have your name on it? Or did it have my name on it? DELTA

Yours. JULIETT

Who's it from? Is it from him or from the court or—? What's on the envelope? DELTA

It's from him. JULIETT

It does matter! You shouldn't have opened it. It does matter. It just— You can't just— Where is it? The letter. Let me see it. DELTA

I sent it back.

JULIETT

Why?

DELTA

Because—

JULIETT

Why would you do that?

DELTA

Because I'm a horrible person and I want to ruin your life.

JULIETT

Juliett.

DELTA

(Juliett starts to leave.)

Juliett. No, wait. You read it? What did it say?
Wait, wait. No, wait. I'm not mad. I'm not upset. Okay? Please?

DELTA

We used to tell each other everything I thought.

JULIETT

I know.

DELTA

I always tell you everything. You always said we could tell each other anything.

JULIETT

Yes, but—

DELTA

But not—everything. Anything but not everything.

JULIETT

I didn't tell anybody that I wrote to him.
There's always been something I can't just forget about him. I can't just move on. I can't just pretend he didn't happen. He was so good once.

DELTA

I know.

JULIETT

DELTA

No you don't.

JULIETT

You keep forgetting I was there.

DELTA

He was gone before you were born.

JULIETT

Well you were only four.

DELTA

I was a mature four.

(A moment.)

JULIETT

He said he misses you. He hopes you're happy.
Just you. He doesn't think about the rest of us, not even Mom. Does he know she died?

DELTA

He never even met—

JULIETT

But he knows about me. You told him about me—in your letters?
And he knew she was pregnant. I mean, could feel him. They would sing to each other every night before bed and they would put their hands on her stomach and it was so warm and I would kick and kick because I couldn't wait to get out / be free / breathe, because nobody told me. I could feel him, right?

(Delta is silent. After a moment, Juliett finds the letter, hands it to Delta. Delta reads.)

JULIETT

Is it true?

(Pause.)

DELTA

You're not mad anymore, are you?
You can't be mad at me when I go to war.

3. Whiskey & Delta

(Prison. Whiskey is in handcuffs. Visiting hours.)

WHISKEY

War, huh? Brave soul.

(Pause.)

WHISKEY

This is like that time my mom got that job and we left the coast.

DELTA

I asked my mom if I could go with you because that's the kind of thing you ask your mom when you're five.

WHISKEY

Oh, man. And I was across the street like, "Mom, please! I'll get a job! I'll sell my shoes!" I'm five. "We don't have to go! Please!" My folks kept babbling about a better life or some-such-whatever and the next thing I know—

DELTA

After that, I had my tear ducts surgically removed.

WHISKEY

And the next thing I know I'm twenty-one and I eat bologna sandwiches three times a day.

DELTA

Should've stayed away I guess.

WHISKEY

Maybe. I don't know. Word on the street is these things [handcuffs] match my eyes. Besides, it's good to see you.

(Delta pulls out the letter.)

DELTA

He wrote back.

WHISKEY

I told you.

DELTA

I told him I'm going to war and he said he hopes I don't die.

WHISKEY

That's something. Right?

Look, for what it's worth, I don't think your old man is the psycho-creature they make him out to be. He's got this picture of you guys when you were kids. And he stares at it every night. For hours. Like if he blinks or looks away you'll just disappear forever and he can't, for the life of him, let that happen.

It's nice, you know. I think about loving that much.

(Pause.)

WHISKEY

They let you get letters over there?

DELTA

You don't have to do that.

WHISKEY

No, it's only fair. It's only fair. You're always coming here—

DELTA

To see about my father.

WHISKEY

Maybe that's how it started, but he won't see you and yet, I can't help but notice, you keep coming back.

DELTA

Maybe I feel sorry for you.

WHISKEY

Maybe I'll take what I can get.

Besides, that's what we do here. Pass the time with words.

They can take our freedom, but they can't take our words.

DELTA

A poet named Whiskey.

WHISKEY

Don't make fun of my mother.

DELTA

No. I wasn't. It works.

WHISKEY

Yeah. My mother was a visionary.

(Pause.)

DELTA

The recruiter said we should make a moment of saying goodbye to the people we—care about. So people will have something to remember in case we don't come back.

WHISKEY

It's too early to talk like that.

DELTA

So I think you should try to remember this moment. In case I don't come back.

(Whiskey remembers the moment. Delta remembers it too.)

WHISKEY

I'm going to build you a house, okay? Something to come back to. No I know some people who went over there. Some are still out there. And some are somewhere in the clouds I guess. But the ones who came back, every last one of them, you could see it in their eyes, they had a reason.

DELTA

Why'd you cut your hair?

WHISKEY

You have to look toward the future, you know.

DELTA

The future likes you better with shorter hair?

WHISKEY

That's the sense I was getting.

DELTA

I have a house.

WHISKEY

White picket fence? What do you want? A garden? A tree-house out back? A koi pond. Decorative rocks. That's a given.

DELTA

No doors.

WHISKEY

A house with no doors?

That's what I want. DELTA
Okay. WHISKEY
Yeah? DELTA
Mark my words. WHISKEY

4. Charlie & Kilo

(Living room. Kilo enters.)

There she is. CHARLIE
You're awake. KILO
I was waiting. CHARLIE
I got caught up catching up. KILO
People can talk your ear off, can't they? CHARLIE
What are you wearing? KILO
You know I would've come— CHARLIE
I know. KILO
I just— I had a lot going on here. CHARLIE

KILO

It doesn't matter; I'm here now.

CHARLIE

I've got all these new ideas.

KILO

Good.

CHARLIE

This—is a kangaphin.

I'm glad you asked: A kangaphin is a kangaroo with the head of a dolphin.

It's just an idea. I was thinking I could maybe sell shirts and stuff for the door museum so I'm working up some ideas, some images, some slogans, like such as—

KILO

(reading)

There are wars in winter. There are wars in spring.

There are wars in summertime. But there are also doors.

CHARLIE

You know, so people won't forget so quickly. That they were here. At the door museum.

You know, they come around, look at a door, see the door, walk out of the door, forget there ever was a door. Forget there is a door still.

I was just thinking, you know—the way this war's headed— I don't know.

Well, you know, like your brother—

I just think we can't get too comfortable. You get comfortable and then like—

(A moment.)

KILO

Do you want to drive somewhere?

CHARLIE

Where?

KILO

It doesn't matter. The edge of the map. Drive until we fall off. Do you want to?

CHARLIE

It's dark out there.

KILO

Yes. That's the point.

CHARLIE

Let's stay in. Talk politics and whatnot.

KILO

Okay.

CHARLIE

Okay?

KILO

Tell me something. Politics.

CHARLIE

Or whatnot?

KILO

Or whatnot.

CHARLIE

Okay. Right. We got a new piece today. Blue.

Lady who brought it in said that her house flooded—whole thing was under water, floor to ceiling—and they lost everything except for the blue door. That's pretty crazy, right? So I'm thinking something like: "There's a lady behind this door. She has a boat." And at first I was going to say "gun" because I've been sort of on that weapon kick. You know sword, sword. Gun. But that's kind of like a buzz-word right now and I'm not really trying to trigger anything. But when it comes down to it, a boat makes more sense anyway. If we're talking about water, we're talking about boats, right? If we want to survive? If we're talking about boats, we're talking about recreation—what, swimming? If we're talking about swimming, we're talking about, like, drowning—that potential. Back to boats—boats for rescue. You see what I mean? How it all sort of runs together? So anyway, blue door.
Yes!

(Charlie jots down his ideas. Kilo takes a cigarette from Charlie's pocket and holds it in her mouth without lighting it.)

CHARLIE

There's food in the kitchen.

(Kilo kisses Charlie, exits.)

5. Delta & Echo

(Bread factory. Echo makes bread.)

DELTA

Do you remember that girl who lived next door when we were kids who couldn't touch anything unless she was wearing gloves?

ECHO

Who?

DELTA

That girl. When we were kids. She was allergic to like everything. Mom wouldn't let her come over to play because she didn't want her to touch something bad and die in our house. You remember— You guys would make up those ridiculous songs and try to make people pay a penny to listen to your “concerts”. Only she could actually sing and you were like this off-key—

ECHO

I don't even think I could pick her out in a crowd.

DELTA

Oh. Well she was in my dream last night. She was singing. You both were. This really dumb song.

ECHO

That was like a thousand years ago.

DELTA

That would break her heart I bet.

ECHO

You meet a billion people in a lifetime.

DELTA

Yeah.

ECHO

I don't suppose you ventured all the way out here to tell me about your dream?

DELTA

It was a good dream.
And don't act like I never visit you. We visit.

(Pause.)

DELTA

I guess you heard they set a date?

ECHO

I heard.

DELTA

Yeah, and it's sort of soon and this time seems pretty serious.

ECHO

Right.

DELTA

And I guess you heard some people still think he's innocent, maybe?

ECHO

We really don't have to keep doing this.

DELTA

People were camped out at the courthouse and—
Echo, good people don't just kill people.

ECHO

Keep your voice down.

DELTA

I'm just saying, if we talk to dad's lawyers—

ECHO

Why do you even care? He's been gone for seventeen years. Whatever man you think you knew, trust me, he isn't there anymore.

DELTA

But what if he really didn't do it?

ECHO

What if?

DELTA

Well then if he didn't kill anybody he doesn't deserve to die. Then we should try to help him. Right? I mean, I don't know. I just keep thinking—

ECHO

If only we could all just sit around thinking.

DELTA

Why can't you talk to me like I'm someone you'd miss if I wasn't around?

ECHO

Because you aren't around. You haven't been around.

DELTA

We all process things—

ECHO

Yeah, I get it: We're different.

(A long moment.)

ECHO

Ever since they announced the execution date I've had reporters calling for statements and yesterday one came here. They got to Juliatt at school.

DELTA

Yeah, I know.

ECHO

Did they get to you?

DELTA

My address isn't listed.

ECHO

I've got some money saved up so I'm renting this house by the lake, figure Juliatt and me, we'll camp out there until this whole thing passes. We'll give it some time: They'll put him down; everybody'll forget all about him; they'll forget about us; Juliatt'll go right back to school. No harm done.
It'll be a vacation.

DELTA

A vacation. Meanwhile a maybe innocent man— You're happy about this, aren't you? They set a date and now you can finally get back to whatever life you've been meaning to lead all this time.

ECHO

No.

DELTA

This is the best news you've heard all—

ECHO

I'm not happy. I've never been happy a day in my life. I've been busy. I've been responsible. But you're the only one who's ever been able to think about "happy". I can count on one hand the number of times our mother smiled after he went away. Everything that's happened to us in the last seventeen years has been because of who that man is. What he did.

DELTA

What they say he did.

ECHO

But you—you got lucky. I don't know how, but— I just wish I had the image of him that you have, then maybe—

DELTA

That's why we should keep trying. We can talk to him, get answers—

ECHO

You don't get it. I actually remember. You remember birthday cakes and impromptu dance parties. I remember everything. And I don't know if he did what they say he did, but—

DELTA

I read about other cases like this, where the governor or whoever, grants a stay of execution. People sign like petitions and if there's enough support from the right people—you, me, Juliatt—

ECHO

Then what? We get our lives back? We get our childhoods back? Juliatt and me, we get to be free, like you? Is that it? We get enough signatures on a petition and we get to fall in and out of love at the drop of a hat and decide to head off to war like we're picking ice-cream flavors too? Like you? You're going to the war, right? That's what I heard.

DELTA

I asked her not to mention anything—

ECHO

Until what?

DELTA

Juliatt told me you haven't been feeling well. I didn't want to upset—

ECHO

I'm fine.

DELTA

I went to the prison to see if he'd see me and he wouldn't. And he won't. And I've been trying to see him for weeks now but it's like we don't even exist to him and I don't know how somebody can pretend people don't exist, but I guess maybe nothing hurts when you know you're going to die soon. You think about the future enough, you start to forget things. So a couple of weeks ago when I went to see him, there was this recruiter outside of the gates and I went up to her and I just—signed up. I just felt like I should. And I sent him a letter and I told him I was going and I thought he would care but he still wouldn't see me and I thought he didn't care but he sent a letter and he said he hopes I survive. And it wasn't as easy as picking an ice-cream flavor. I've thought about this. I've been thinking about this. And I know how it looks. But I swear this isn't about anything other than I want to do this. You know, I want to help people. I want my life to mean something.

ECHO

This isn't joke. You understand that?
People die in war. Actual people lose their actual lives.

DELTA

Look I don't need a lecture. It's a decision I've already made.
I just came to say goodbye.

(Pause.)

ECHO

Take care of yourself.

DELTA

You too.

6. November & Echo

(The porch. Echo struggles to unlock the red door. November appears.)

NOVEMBER

Trouble?

ECHO

It worked this morning.

NOVEMBER

Everybody has trouble with this one.

ECHO

You know this house?

NOVEMBER

I grew up here. —Can I?

(Echo hands him the key. He tries to unlock the door.)

NOVEMBER

I saw you move in here a few weeks ago.

ECHO

I've seen you around.

NOVEMBER

People come here when they want to start over. Or forget. Or hide out or something.
—You kill somebody in another life?

ECHO

No.

NOVEMBER

That was meant to be a joke. I'm sorry.
The story goes, my grandfolks stumbled across this place just as a terrible storm was rolling in and they tried to get somebody to let them in but nobody was home so my grandma threw a rock through the window and they climbed in and rode out the storm. Then they sort of stuck around and nobody ever came home, so they set up life. Cool house, but a bit antique for my taste so we let a manager take care of it but he—well. I live out there now.

ECHO

The boat?

NOVEMBER

My pride and joy.

(She takes the key from him. She tries again.)

NOVEMBER

Yeah, well that's what you have to do sometimes. Start over.

(Echo turns the knob, pushes the door. It opens.)

NOVEMBER

Well there you go.

ECHO

Tenth time's a charm.

NOVEMBER
(offering his hand)

November.

ECHO
(shaking his hand)

Echo. Well goodnight.

NOVEMBER

Yeah— Hey, do you like boats?

ECHO

Not in particular. Why?

NOVEMBER

I was just, you know—if you ever want to see the sights—my boat is— I mean, it doesn't move, but it's got a pretty solid view right where it is.

ECHO

Yeah, maybe.

NOVEMBER

How long are you staying?

ECHO

As long as it takes.

NOVEMBER

Right on. Well I'm around. I'm always like around, you know, if you need—

ECHO

My sister will be here in a few days. She's about your age. I'd like to fix up the place before she gets here. I suppose I could use a hand.

NOVEMBER

I have two.

ECHO

And maybe you can show her around?

NOVEMBER

Yeah. I mean, there's not a whole lot to see.

ECHO

Oh.

No, but sure. Yeah. NOVEMBER

Thank you. ECHO

Well—goodnight. NOVEMBER

Goodnight. ECHO

Goodnight. NOVEMBER

Goodnight. ECHO

7. November & Juliett

(The woods.)

NOVEMBER
A lot of trees down this way. A couple of houses out there.

(Juliett looks at the trees and the houses.)

NOVEMBER
Your sister said you're in school? What do you—

JULIETT
History.

NOVEMBER
The war?

JULIETT
We talk about the war.
Were you a soldier?

NOVEMBER
No. Why?

JULIETT

Your bracelet.

(A moment.)

NOVEMBER

Oh. No.

But—the guy I work for, he’s like obsessed with the thing. Yeah, he sees the war in everything. In every sunrise, in every color, in every doorway.

JULIETT

That’s sad.

(They step onto November’s boat.)

NOVEMBER

And—this is my boat. House. Or—whatever. It’s old, but if you stand in the right place and you look long enough, you can see the war from here.

8. Charlie & Echo

(Bus stop. Echo and Charlie stare straight ahead. Charlie finds a cigarette.)

CHARLIE

Do you smoke?

(Nothing.)

CHARLIE

You don’t smoke.

(Nothing.)

CHARLIE

Do you mind?

(Nothing. Charlie lights a cigarette.)

CHARLIE

So—what, no car?

I have a car. It’s broken though. I screwed it up. Like the whole left fender. And half of the—one whole side is just—you know. I’m just—I’m not a very good driver, I guess. If we’re being honest. Because I get distracted.

I'm easily distracted by shiny things.
 You ever hear people say that about squirrels?
 You think it's true? I don't know. Like—you think people went out and like tested that—to see? I don't know.
 Some people have odd jobs.
 Whatever pays the bills, you know.
 I'm getting into sales myself. Nice, normal.
 A bit dry at times, but, you know, whatever pays the—

ECHO

What kind of sales?

CHARLIE

What?

ECHO

What do you sell?

CHARLIE

Well that depends on the— Well like today, see, we got flowers.

(Pause.)

CHARLIE

—Good. Because I was wondering. Because I was thinking about, what if I was talking that whole time and you couldn't actually hear me. I got an uncle like that. My pa's brother.

ECHO

What kind of flowers?

CHARLIE

You want to see?

ECHO

Could I?

(Charlie pulls a handful of wilted flowers from a duffel bag.)

CHARLIE

Now these—might need some water. You might just want to spray them down with water. Or like—plant them out back overnight. They'll come right back. I guarantee. If you just—spritz. You just gotta spritz them down is all.

ECHO

How much?

Five? Four.

CHARLIE

I'll think about it.

ECHO

What's that?

CHARLIE

I said I'm gonna think about it.

ECHO

Okay. That's fine. You think about it.
And that's fair, you know. Too many people rush into things. Just make decisions—don't even think. Got an uncle like that. My pa's brother.

(Charlie puts the flowers back in the duffel bag.)

ECHO

What's his name?

CHARLIE

My pa's brother? Henry. That's what everybody calls him. Good guy.
Fought in the war for a bit, you know, at the start.

ECHO

Right at the start?

CHARLIE

Thereabouts.

ECHO

You see him a lot?

CHARLIE

Not so much these days.

ECHO

You should.

CHARLIE

Yeah. No, I know.
Yeah, because—like what if he dies in his sleep and I don't get to say goodbye.

ECHO

Or what if he lives another thirty years and you just keep staying away.

CHARLIE

I wouldn't do that. Not for thirty years.

I'd go today if I had my car, but I—like screwed the whole thing up.

ECHO

I'm still thinking.

CHARLIE

Yeah. You can take all the time you need.

I'm not trying to rush anybody. I can go as low as three.

Is it the price?

ECHO

No.

CHARLIE

I can go as low as two.

ECHO

Let me see them again?

CHARLIE

You want to see?

(Charlie pulls the wilted flowers from the duffel bag.)

CHARLIE

It's not a bad deal. If you think about it. You can put them all around the house. Or out back. Whatever. They work well on kitchen tables.

(Echo touches the flowers. She tilts them. She pulls a camera from her own bag. She takes a picture of the flowers.)

ECHO

Do you mind?

(She takes another picture.)

ECHO

The light's coming at them just right.

(Charlie looks up at the sun.)

CHARLIE

You can see that?

(She takes a third picture.)

ECHO

Thank you.

(She puts the camera back in her bag.)

CHARLIE

Sure.

(Pause.)

ECHO

I'm still thinking.

CHARLIE

Is that what you do? You—take pictures? What, for like a magazine?

ECHO

Just started a job at the jail actually.

You know, when you first come in and they make you stand against that wall—

CHARLIE

That's you?

ECHO

What can I say? It pays the bills.

CHARLIE

County. County jail. So you work for the jail. You've probably met my Uncle Henry then. Or you will soon. He's a good guy. Hard times, you know? He's always in and out of that place. We can't always stay on the path.

ECHO

But sometimes I take pictures just because.

CHARLIE

Paths are too narrow. That's what I always say. Right?

ECHO

I like to stop time.

CHARLIE

Make the path so small and we're all trying to stay on it, and we're all—like falling off.

ECHO

Hard times.

CHARLIE

Exactly. Yeah. You want to take a picture of me?

ECHO

What?

CHARLIE

For—when you write a book and you need a picture for the cover?

ECHO

Oh.

CHARLIE

Some people think I'm a good-looking guy.

(A moment.)

CHARLIE

Fair enough. Doesn't hurt, right? You get used to that in sales. Doesn't always just work the first time out. You get used to that. Some people are like—quick about it. Some people take their time. But it never hurts to ask.

ECHO

And sometimes for the newspaper. I freelance.

(Echo pulls a newspaper from her bag.)

CHARLIE

That's you?

ECHO

My first time in print. If we're being honest.
That's the lake where we're staying—my sister and me. And the trees.

CHARLIE

Wow.

ECHO

Sometimes the sun sets just right and you get lucky.

CHARLIE

You live on the lake—just right there?

ECHO

Sometimes the sun's setting and you have to be quick about it. Or you'll miss it.

CHARLIE

That's your boat?

ECHO

You can't tell because it's in black and white, but the sky was almost purple right then—because of how the sun was, you know, with the water—

CHARLIE

This is incredible.

ECHO

When the sun sets like that—

CHARLIE

It's like a painting. Perfect.

ECHO

You don't think it's too simple?

Understated. Right? Simple is good, sometimes. If it's right. This is—right.

ECHO

You think so?

CHARLIE

Anybody can see that. With the lines— I mean—but— But what do I know, right?

(Echo takes the paper from Charlie and puts it back into her bag.)

ECHO

Thank you.

CHARLIE

I can go as low as one. That's barely anything at all, if you think about it.

ECHO

Maybe not today, but— My bus is—

CHARLIE

If you don't buy them, I'll die.

9. Juliett & Whiskey

(The woods. Whiskey uses a nail to attach two planks of wood. He begins to hammer—quietly at first, then louder and louder. Juliett enters through the red door.)

JULIETT

Hey. Guy! HEY!

(Whiskey stops hammering, looks up at Juliett.)

JULIETT

That's annoying.

WHISKEY

I'm sorry.

JULIETT

We're trying to sleep.

WHISKEY

I'll keep it down.

JULIETT

I feel like you're just saying that.

WHISKEY

I'll keep it down.

JULIETT

A lot of people say they'll keep it down and then they don't.

WHISKEY

Yeah, I'm sure life's been hard.

(He hammers.)

JULIETT

That isn't keeping it down.

It's a hammer. WHISKEY

Then don't use a hammer. JULIETT

And just how do you propose I get the nail in the wood if I don't use a hammer? WHISKEY

Maybe you don't put the nail in the wood. Or maybe you wait until a decent hour. JULIETT

Can't. No time. War's ending soon. WHISKEY

You think so? JULIETT

Give me a hand, would you? WHISKEY

(Juliett holds the wood. Whiskey hammers.)

What are you building? JULIETT

A house. If you must know. This is the ninth spot I've tried. They keep making me move, but now there's no time. You understand. I'm sorry. WHISKEY

Why? JULIETT

Some people build houses. WHISKEY

With your own two hands? JULIETT

The war's ending soon so— WHISKEY

So— JULIETT

WHISKEY

So we need a place to stay.

(He grabs a third piece of wood.)

WHISKEY

I know what you're thinking: "There are people whose job it is to build things." I should go to them, right? To the people who know better? To the great gods of architecture? Maybe. You know. After a while. After I give it a go and it doesn't work out. Maybe. —Because maybe some people deserve things, you know, sometimes, and so it works out. Right? That seems fair.

JULIETT

That seems fair.

WHISKEY

People with sad stories deserve a little sympathy. Right? Sometimes?

JULIETT

It's your party, bro.

(Pause.)

JULIETT

Are you hungry?

(Juliett uses a knife to cut an apple in half.)

JULIETT

They're good for you.

WHISKEY

You know, I'm actually familiar with apples.

(She tosses one half to Whiskey. He takes a bite, hands it back to her, resumes building.)

WHISKEY

Never turn down an earnest offering.

(Juliett bites the other half.)

JULIETT

No, actually I'm thinking: Unless, this is your "full moon body" and usually you're like a humming bird or something, I don't think you have enough wood.

WHISKEY

I got that.

JULIETT

It's just a shame it doesn't grow on trees.

(Whiskey laughs. He takes the apple from her again, takes another bite, hands it back to her, resumes building.)

WHISKEY

The body is a fickle machine. Do you know that? Life is impossible. And yet it's happening. It doesn't make any sense but it's happening. For now. Just now. And then, poof—these bodies just— If we were stones, we'd live forever—you, me, everybody—but in these bodies we have very little time.

JULIETT

So as far as your body is concerned, it isn't four o'clock in the morning?

WHISKEY

No, that's not the point. To know the time is to know beginning and end, is to know the end, is to know the end, the eventual end.

JULIETT

And to not know the time is to pretend there's no eventual end? What's the point? Why build anything?

WHISKEY

Because the now—the now, the real / live / happening now.

(Whiskey hits the nail on the head. It breaks.)

10. November & Juliett

(November on his boat. He is in the early stages of a whittling project.)

NOVEMBER

(singing: Jeanie with the Light Brown Hair)

*I dream of Jeanie with the light brown hair
Borne like a vapor, on the summer's air
I see her tripping where the bright streams play
Happy as the daisies that dance on her way*

(Juliett enters. November does not see her.)

NOVEMBER

(singing)

*Many were the wild notes her merry voice would pour
 Many were the blithe birds that warbled them o'er
 Floating, like a vapor on the soft summer air*

JULIETT

I like that.

NOVEMBER

It's old.

JULIETT

I can tell. It's got a soul.

NOVEMBER

That's one way to think of it.

JULIETT

That's how I think of it.

NOVEMBER

My dad used to sing that.

JULIETT

Is that your mom's name?

(A moment.)

JULIETT

What are you making?

NOVEMBER

Don't know yet.

Hey, how's your sister? Did she hear from the doctor?

JULIETT

I don't really want to talk about it.

NOVEMBER

Just making conversation.

JULIETT

Do you like it here?

What's not to like?
NOVEMBER

No, I mean, really like it.
JULIETT

It's quiet.
NOVEMBER

And sad, right?
JULIETT

You think everything's sad.
NOVEMBER

Lonely, I mean?
JULIETT

There's you guys. Those two down that way. That woman, lives a couple of miles down.
NOVEMBER

That guy who's trying to build a house.
JULIETT

Who?
NOVEMBER

Some guy. He was out here a couple of nights ago, literally trying to build a house.
JULIETT

Sure. That guy. That kid who lives up on the hill. And that's just on this side of the lake.
NOVEMBER

That's plenty.
JULIETT

For me.
NOVEMBER

Don't you miss your parents?
JULIETT

Don't have any. I was born in a cave and raised by wolves.
NOVEMBER

JULIETT

Guess you're all kinds of vicious.

NOVEMBER

All kinds of self-preserving.
—Is it lonely?

JULIETT

I think if the world ends—if the world ever ends—there's a good chance we won't know about it for days. We won't know about it until we drive into town at the end of the week and everybody's dead. Or gone. Or like—whatever happens to everybody at the end of the world.

(Juliett looks out over the water.)

JULIETT

My sisters and me, we grew up on the coast. Used to swim every night.

NOVEMBER

I never learned.

JULIETT

You live on a boat.

NOVEMBER

Yeah, I just never got around to it.

JULIETT

Scared?

NOVEMBER

No.

JULIETT

It isn't scary. It is at first but then it isn't.

NOVEMBER

One day.

JULIETT

Do you want to?

NOVEMBER

One day. Maybe. Maybe if the woman I love is on the other side of a lake or something, if I have to swim to get to her.

JULIETT
Why can't she swim to you?

NOVEMBER
She can.

JULIETT
Doesn't matter. You'll never fall in love anyway.
You spend twenty-three hours a day completely alone and you don't feel lonely. That means you don't need anybody else.

(Pause.)

NOVEMBER
—Hey, you want to see something?

(November pulls out an unfinished guitar.)

JULIETT
You made this?

NOVEMBER
Still working on it. It isn't finished yet.

JULIETT
Obviously.

NOVEMBER
I found this wood by the dock.

JULIETT
It's dirty.

NOVEMBER
I haven't finished it yet. I'm going to stain it. You can play it if you want.

(Juliatt plucks the strings.)

JULIETT
This is actually decent.

NOVEMBER
Oh hey, I can die happy.

JULIETT
Sing something.

NOVEMBER

Play something.

JULIETT

Who says I know how?

NOVEMBER

Your sister.

NOVEMBER

(singing – Ain't We Got Fun)

*Every morning, every evening, ain't we got fun?
Not much money, oh, but honey, ain't we got fun?
The rent's unpaid dear; we haven't a bus,
But smiles were made dear for people like us.
In the winter, in the summer, don't we have fun?
Times are bum and getting bummer, still we have fun.
There's nothing surer: the rich get richer, and the poor get children.
In the meantime, in between time, ain't we got fun?*

11. Kilo & Delta

(War. Delta writes a letter, drinks a soda. Kilo watches for a moment.)

KILO

There's enough acid in that can to put a hole in a diamond.
It's true. I read it somewhere.

(Delta drinks. Delta writes.)

KILO

Been here long?

DELTA

Got here just before you.

KILO

My brother left for the war a couple of years ago, never came home.

DELTA

Dead?

KILO

Never found his body, so I can't quite think of him in the past tense just yet. He really believes in this thing. This war. So I felt this feeling like I should come out and—

(Delta's pen dies.)

DELTA

Let me use your pen?

KILO

Dead.

DELTA

Must be some kind of force-field.

KILO

Must be. —Yeah, I'm just passing through, myself. I guess this is all it is. We just sit here and wait for something to happen.

DELTA

I guess.

KILO

What if nothing ever does?

DELTA

We go home.

KILO

I can't wait. I miss the water and the trees.

DELTA

You just got here.

KILO

I miss the houses. I miss my— Sometimes. In some moments.

DELTA

We're at war and you're worried about houses.

KILO

We're at war and you're worried about letters.

DELTA

I'm just saying—if you don't want to be here, why did you come?

KILO

When did you hear me say anything about I don't want to be here?

(Pause.)

DELTA

I never actually got your name.

KILO

“Soldier”.

DELTA

Hey, mine too. John Jacob Jingleheimer Schmidt.

KILO

What?

DELTA

You know. His name is my name too...

KILO

Good one.

It's not that I don't want to be here; I just have a lot of questions.

DELTA

Questions?

KILO

If you could, would you end the war? If you had some sort of lever? If you had some sort of lever that was like if you pulled it—peace. Would you pull it?

DELTA

That could never happen.

KILO

Peace?

DELTA

People are monsters. You'd pull that lever—peace—and then the next day somebody would say a wrong word and—

KILO

But what if no one did? What if that one day—peace—made everybody go, “Hey maybe this could be a thing.”

DELTA

Life isn’t that simple.

(Kilo finds another pen. She writes.)

DELTA

You had another pen all that time?

KILO

I just remembered.

(Kilo gives the pen to Delta. Delta writes.)

KILO

I would, I think.

DELTA

End the war?

KILO

Pull the lever. Just to see.
I don’t know. Maybe.

12. Charlie & Juliett & November

(Door Museum.)

CHARLIE

(as a tour guide)

And we’re back where we started.

NOVEMBER

(as a tour guide)

And we’re back where we started.

CHARLIE

Good.

NOVEMBER

(as a tour guide)

As you can see, the door works just like any door.
Hinges and such. Swinging and such. No creaking just yet. Not just yet.
Just like any other door with hinges and such and swinging and such.
Except, of course—there's a man behind this door. He has a sword.
He has a— He has a sword. Sword.

CHARLIE

Right.

NOVEMBER

I come around this way?

CHARLIE

Not necessarily. Just whatever feels natural.
More tomorrow.

(Charlie grabs a can of paint.)

NOVEMBER

Hey, thanks. For the job and everything. I never said that.

CHARLIE

The second you get it down, I'm out of here, and this place is all yours.

(November laughs. Charlie paints the red door red. Juliett enters.)

JULIETT

So this is the infamous "door museum".

NOVEMBER

Oh hey.

JULIETT

I just came to see if you want to get lunch or something.

NOVEMBER

I can't today. Charlie has me on doorknobs.

JULIETT

Oh. Well do I at least get a tour?

NOVEMBER

Charlie, this is Juliett.

JULIETT

Hey, Charlie. I've heard a lot about—

(Charlie exits through the red door, shutting it behind him. He knocks on the red door. Juliett reaches to open it. November stops her. Another knock.)

JULIETT

What are you doing?

(A pounding at the door.)

NOVEMBER

(as a tour guide)

By now you must be wondering, “Why doesn't the man with the sword just come in?”

(Charlie opens the door, sticks his head inside.)

CHARLIE

“—in!” You have to—

NOVEMBER

“Why doesn't the man with the sword just come in!”

CHARLIE

Better.

(Charlie closes the door.)

NOVEMBER

(as a tour guide)

And that is an excellent question: Why won't the man with the sword come through the door? Well to answer that question, I think we need a bit more context. Is this his door? Does this door belong to a friend? a stranger? —an enemy? And, of course, more to the point—is this door red?

(Charlie enters, resumes painting.)

CHARLIE

Show her the hats.

NOVEMBER

Oh, right. Okay.

(November tosses Juliett a hat.)

JULIETT

(reading)

*There are wars in winter. There are wars in spring.
There are wars in summertime. But there are also doors.*

CHARLIE

That's so like, you won't forget we're here. You know, you'll look at that hat and be like, "Oh yeah, there's a war museum. There's a war."

JULIETT

You mean door museum?

CHARLIE

Sure, yeah. I lose my words.

JULIETT

How much?

CHARLIE

It's on the house.

NOVEMBER

Hey thanks, boss.

(JuliETT puts the hat on. Charlie goes upstairs.)

JULIETT

This place is weird.

NOVEMBER

How's the guitar holding up? I found the perfect stain so if you bring it by the boat I can fix it up for you.

JULIETT

What are you going to do when I go back to school?

NOVEMBER

What do you mean?

JULIETT

Like when the term starts up. My sister'll go back to her old life. You'll be all alone again.

NOVEMBER

I'll get by.

JULIETT

You think so?

NOVEMBER

I think—that you look like a tool in that hat.

(Charlie re-enters, heads for the red door, stops.)

CHARLIE

Guy called about a grey door. Something to do with fire. Singed on all the edges I think. He's bringing it by tomorrow. Grey door. See what you come up with. I'm going to buy more paint. How's my hair?

NOVEMBER

Good.

JULIETT

You look good.

NOVEMBER

Sharp.

JULIETT

Super sharp.

NOVEMBER

Downright sword-like.

(Charlie exits.)

13. Echo & Charlie

(Bus stop.)

ECHO

So I guess you're not dead.
You know because you said—if I—

CHARLIE

Oh, right.

(Pause.)

ECHO

I met someone who looked like you.

CHARLIE

Today?

ECHO

Just—your shape I think. He came into the jail. Rough night.

CHARLIE

Uncle Henry. What'd I tell you? I should go see him.

ECHO

They tell us not to make friends with the inmates but some of them are just so kind.

CHARLIE

Those buildings are like—dilapidated.

ECHO

Which ones?

CHARLIE

It's like nobody takes care of them. They've got trees, you know, growing out of them. It's pathetic. It's embarrassing. Show a little respect, right?

(Charlie lights a cigarette.)

CHARLIE

Do you smoke?
You don't smoke.
Do you mind?

(Pause.)

CHARLIE

We got a house today. If you're in the market.

ECHO

It depends.

CHARLIE

No, I know. When I told my wife how close I got last time—

ECHO

Close to what?

CHARLIE

The deal. With you. How you almost said yes. When I told my wife how close I got, she said maybe it's time to hang it up.

ECHO

Really, why?

CHARLIE

Because I used to be—better. Do you remember yourself before? You gain ten-twenty years and you're like—a whole different person.

ECHO

That's how it feels sometimes.

(Pause.)

CHARLIE

I feel like we know each other well enough now that I can tell you something.

ECHO

Okay.

CHARLIE

My wife's— She's been gone for a while now.
I gave up. I didn't fight. I'm not a fighter.

ECHO

I'm sorry.

CHARLIE

What I said she said a second ago is what I think she would have said if she was still—here. I do that sometimes.

ECHO

You lie?

CHARLIE

I pretend.

ECHO

Does it help?

CHARLIE

Sometimes.

(A moment. Echo closes her eyes.)

ECHO

My blood is filled with crystals and when they scrape against my veins, the war forgets itself. ...But there aren't any crystals and I'll live to be a hundred.

(Echo breathes. She opens her eyes.)

CHARLIE

Feels good. See?

ECHO

I don't know which one was the lie.

CHARLIE

That happens sometimes.

ECHO

The doctor says there's something the matter with my blood.
The kind of sick that rips straight through you.

CHARLIE

I'm sorry.

(Charlie takes off his glasses and cleans them with his shirt.)

ECHO

Wait.

(Echo pulls out her camera and takes two pictures of the glasses.)

ECHO

Thank you.

(Charlie puts his glasses back on and pulls a magazine from his duffel bag.)

CHARLIE

And like some days I think she'll come back and most days I'm not so sure and I get so tired of looking at all of her stuff.

ECHO

Maybe your Uncle Henry knew my father.

CHARLIE

From the jail, you mean?

ECHO

The war. My father was the soldier.

CHARLIE

What does that mean?

ECHO

The one they said killed all those other soldiers the night before they were supposed to head to the war? That was him. That was my father. I am his daughter.

(A moment.)

CHARLIE

Like see, today we got a house. If you're in the market. This here on the back. This one's a four bedroom. Came up at the turn of the century. It's got its original flooring. All new appliances in the kitchen. Two-car garage. Original door. A museum sort of space in the downstairs. I mean, but you could use it for whatever.
—What would it take to get you in a new house today?

ECHO

Well. I'd need—to see it.

CHARLIE

Okay.

ECHO

I'd need to like it. And I'd want it to be a fair price.

CHARLIE

We can do that.

ECHO

My bus is coming.

CHARLIE

If you don't buy it, I'll—die.

ECHO

How will you die?

CHARLIE

I'll drown.

ECHO

In the lake?

CHARLIE

I'm afraid of water. I'll panic.

ECHO

Why would you get in the lake if you're afraid of water?

CHARLIE

To cool off. It's hot in the summer.

ECHO

It isn't summer.

CHARLIE

Then why are there so many people at the lake?

ECHO

Because it's beautiful. It's autumn.

CHARLIE

It's autumn. And the leaves are falling and it's beautiful.

ECHO

Into the water?

CHARLIE

All around it.

14. Juliett & Echo

(The porch. Juliett stains the guitar. Or else she plays a song. Echo enters.)

ECHO

Yes. I am late. And I am sorry.

JULIETT

Called the police. They didn't know where you were either.

ECHO

I should've called.

JULIETT

I could've fallen and you wouldn't have known for days.

ECHO

Well, if I was away for days.

JULIETT
That's what I meant.

ECHO
I brought take-out.

JULIETT
I'm not hungry.

ECHO
Did you eat?

JULIETT
I'm not hungry.

ECHO
Do you want to see what I brought at least?
Potatoes. You like potatoes.

(Echo sits.)

JULIETT
Where were you?

ECHO
Doctor's appointment. They ran late.

JULIETT
More tests?

ECHO
Yeah. Yep.

JULIETT
What's taking so long?

ECHO
Some things take time.

JULIETT
You know if they don't let me come back to school, I can always stick around here—

ECHO
What do you mean if they don't let you come back?

JULIETT

They sent me home because they're afraid of me. If I'm something to be afraid of, that's not going to change just because— I mean, I could take a semester— I could help you get better.

ECHO

I'm fine. Everybody's fine. You don't have anything to worry about.

(Pause.)

ECHO

What do you want to do tonight? We can watch a movie...

JULIETT

Nothing.

ECHO

"Nothing". Hm. I don't know that one.

JULIETT

Stop it.

ECHO

Nope, don't know that one either. You kids and your new-fangled—

JULIETT

I'm not a kid.

ECHO

I was joking.

JULIETT

It wasn't funny.

ECHO

I know that now. Did—something happen?

JULIETT

Our father's dead if that's what you mean.

(Echo picks up the newspaper.)

ECHO

(reading)

"Everything went exactly as planned."

“ ‘Maybe now we can start to put our lives back together,’ says the youngest victim’s oldest son.”

JULIETT

“...pronounced dead at 11:08 PM.” Just like that.

ECHO

And on and on it spins.

JULIETT

We should’ve been there.

ECHO

I didn’t know you wanted to go. You never said you wanted to go.

JULIETT

I keep having these dreams about him. I’m ten or eleven and he picks me up from soccer practice and we get strawberry milkshakes and the waiter’s name is Tom and mom is with us but she only gets water. And we just sit there—the three of us—until we realize we don’t have a single thing to say to one another. So we all go our separate ways. I don’t even like soccer. I’m really bad at it.

(Pause.)

JULIETT

Potatoes?

(Echo hands her the food. They eat.)

15. Delta & Whiskey

(The woods. Delta and Whiskey stop at a spot.)

DELTA

This is the place?

WHISKEY

It’s under a tree in case it rains, far enough away from the water in case it floods. I mean, it’s only temporary. I mean, it’s the best I could do—

DELTA

I like it.

WHISKEY

I mean, there are other—

DELTA

I said it's fine.

(Delta begins to unpack a bag, as if settling into a hotel. Whiskey joins her.)

DELTA

All right. So he's over there.

WHISKEY

Over there?

DELTA

And he's coming straight at me. And so my guy says to run.

WHISKEY

So you run?

DELTA

And so I'm trying to run and all of a sudden I feel this pressure.

WHISKEY

Like—pressure.

DELTA

Like I'm being sprayed with some sort of high-pressure water hose. It's pulsing.

WHISKEY

Inside?

DELTA

I'm trying to run and my whole body is like on fire and I get to the other side of the hill and there's this village. Town. Honest to god. There are people going about their morning routines, dropping the kids off at daycare, having breakfast at the café. Living. Meanwhile, my head is pounding and the next thing I know I'm on the ground. And the next thing I know I'm at the hospital and all the walls are white. And the next thing I know, I'm with my mother and she's singing a love song. And the next thing I know, I'm here. With you. Again.

WHISKEY

Again and for the first time.

DELTA

It's like we're kids again. Before everything went wrong.

WHISKEY

Every morning. Every morning I'm telling myself, you know, and then—

DELTA

It's funny but it isn't. How life repeats itself.

WHISKEY

And then the war was over.

DELTA

No.

WHISKEY

For my part at least. You were here, I mean.

(Pause.)

WHISKEY

Hey. Did you cry?

DELTA

What?

WHISKEY

When—

DELTA

Oh. I don't think so.

WHISKEY

Good.

DELTA

Because I knew you'd wait.

WHISKEY

I would.

DELTA

For a hundred years.

WHISKEY

More than that.

DELTA
How many years?

WHISKEY
Hundred and five, easy.

(They kiss.)

WHISKEY
No doors, at least?

(Delta laughs.)

DELTA
The last guy I fell in love with used to get these attacks after dark. If I left the door open for too long at night, he was like, it was like— Legitimate attacks. I mean—he couldn't breathe.

WHISKEY
Why?

DELTA
Because he was afraid.

WHISKEY
Of what?

DELTA
The weather. The war. The world. Everything.

WHISKEY
Well I'm not afraid of anything.

(Delta kisses him.)

WHISKEY
We used to make up poems. Remember? When we were babies. All those words are gone now.

DELTA
We should've written them down.

WHISKEY
We were babies once, weren't we?

DELTA

I think so. I vaguely remember being carried.

WHISKEY

In the womb?

DELTA

Yes, Whiskey. I remember the womb.

WHISKEY

I didn't have enough wood for—

DELTA

I don't care.

WHISKEY

But I'm going to build it. This is only temporary.

(They kiss. They rest.)

WHISKEY

What was it like? The war.
Tell me everything.

(They regard each other for a long, long while.)

DELTA

You gotta get a job.

WHISKEY

Yeah.

DELTA

We gotta pay the bills.

WHISKEY

And it'll be good to eat out every-so-often.

DELTA

I guess the checks will only come for so long and then I'll get a job too.

(Pause.)

WHISKEY

You know, I sent that letter.

DELTA

What letter?

WHISKEY

Before you left for the war.

Your father wouldn't accept any letters, not from you or anybody. But the guards knew we were friends, you and me, and so they let me read your letter and I read it and I wrote back and I'm sorry. I just— I felt like— I knew you needed to hear something so you could do what you needed to do.

DELTA

You sent that to my sister.

WHISKEY

I didn't know your address. But you told me what school she went to—

DELTA

When?

WHISKEY

The first time you came to see me. If I could do it all over again—

DELTA

Why are you telling me this?

WHISKEY

Because it's been killing me. That whole time you were away. If anything happened to you—

DELTA

Something did happen.

WHISKEY

I feel like if we're going to be together for the rest of our lives, that's something you should know. I mean, you should know I'm sorry. Say something.

(Delta gets ready for bed. Whiskey gets ready for bed. Delta lies down. Whiskey lies beside her.)

WHISKEY

No wolves, at least.

DELTA

But that picture? The one you said he looked at every night before bed—

WHISKEY

Delta, I would never—

DELTA

Don't just say what you think I want to hear.

WHISKEY

I wouldn't lie about something like that.

(Delta grabs a jacket.)

DELTA

I'll be back. Don't follow me.

(Delta exits.)

16. Kilo & Juliett

(The woods. Juliett warms her hands over a small fire. Kilo enters holding a map.)

KILO

Is this North?

JULIETT

What?

KILO

North. Up. I'm trying to find my grandmother.

(Juliett looks at the map. She turns it upside down, then right side up again.)

JULIETT

It's that way, I think.

KILO

It has to be, right?

JULIETT

I'm pretty sure.

KILO

Thanks.

(Pause.)

Is that all? JULIETT

Yeah, that's— I think that's all. So I guess I'll just— Just—taking in the night? KILO

Trying to. JULIETT

Just breathing? KILO

Just being alone. JULIETT

Absolutely. KILO

Which can be hard to manage when there's someone else there. JULIETT

Right. Yeah, I was just— Yeah, goodnight. KILO

(Kilo starts to go.)

You can sit if you want. JULIETT

(Kilo sits.)

Have you ever met a monster before? JULIETT

No. —Are you a monster? KILO

What do you think? JULIETT

I don't think so. But I don't know. KILO

JULIETT
And how does that make you feel?

KILO
Okay, I guess.

JULIETT
Are you cold?

(Kilo puts her hands over the fire.)

KILO
How do you know if someone's a monster?

JULIETT
Everybody says so I guess.

KILO
But—why would they say so?

JULIETT
Because it's true.

KILO
Do you have to kill somebody or something? Like—a lot of people. Right? On purpose.
To be a proper monster?

JULIETT
When I was ten, I flushed my mother's flowers down the toilet because I didn't like the colors. Does that make me a monster?

KILO
I don't know.

JULIETT
When I was eight, I broke all of the plates in the house and blamed it on the dog. Does that make me a monster?

KILO
No. I don't think so, no.

JULIETT
When I was nine, I set my bed on fire and went for a swim and half the house burned down. Does that make me a monster?

(Pause.)

JULIETT

When I was seven, I taped my sisters' windows shut so that their allergies would flare.
Their noses would bleed when their allergies flared.

When I was six, I threw my desk-mate's crayons into the dumpster at recess.

When I was nine, I beat the car with a golf club and told my mother there had been a terrible hailstorm.

When I was twelve, I ran away and stayed away for six days just because I wanted to see if anyone would worry.

When I was fifteen—

KILO

Stop.

JULIETT

When I was fifteen, I made a kid stop breathing for seventy-eight seconds.

He wouldn't breathe but then he did.

KILO

There's no one here with clean hands.

JULIETT

You're a monster too?

KILO

All of that stuff was a long time ago.

JULIETT

Not to me. To me, it feels like yesterday. Or this morning.

Sometimes I feel like I'm doing it right now.

KILO

You're not. Trust me: I can see you. You're—freezing.

JULIETT

I'm fine.

KILO

You're shaking.

JULIETT

It's cold.

(Pause.)

KILO

There's no one here with clean hands.

JULIETT

Are you a monster too?

KILO

I'm just saying: Life is long.

17. November & Whiskey

(Boat. November builds a small wooden airplane.)

NOVEMBER

(singing – Waltz Me Around Again, Willie)

*Willie Fitzgibbons,
Who used to sell ribbons,
And stood up all day on his feet,
Grew very spoony
On Madelaine Mooney,
Who'd rather be dancing than eat.
Each evening she'd tag him,
To some dance hall drag him,
And when the band started to play—*

(November blows the dust off the top of the plane. Whiskey enters.
November does not see him.)

NOVEMBER

(singing)

*She'd up like a silly,
And grab tired Willie,
Steer him on the floor and she'd say:
"Waltz me around again, Willie,
Around, around, around!
The music is dreamy,
It's peaches and creamy,
O don't let my feet touch the ground!
I feel like a ship on an ocean of joy --
I just want to holler out loud, 'Ship Ahoy!'
Waltz me around again, Willie,
Around, around, around!"*

(Whiskey applauds.)

NOVEMBER

Thanks.

I like that. WHISKEY

It's old. NOVEMBER

I can tell. It's got a soul. WHISKEY

My mom used to sing that to my dad. NOVEMBER

Is that his name? WHISKEY

No. NOVEMBER

This your boat? WHISKEY

Who's asking? NOVEMBER

Just looking for work, man. WHISKEY

Gotta pay the bills. NOVEMBER

You understand. WHISKEY

Wish I could help. NOVEMBER

I'm a good worker. I'm sure you could use a hand with the fish. WHISKEY

Boat's broken. She hasn't been out in years. NOVEMBER

I'm dying, man. WHISKEY

I wish I could help. NOVEMBER

I'm not from around here. WHISKEY

I know. NOVEMBER

Just trying to make a better life for my family. WHISKEY

Where you from? NOVEMBER

All over, man. Up North. WHISKEY

Cold winters. NOVEMBER

It's not so bad. You get used to it. WHISKEY

Not me. I'm cold-blooded already. NOVEMBER

Know anybody looking for help? WHISKEY

Not right off. NOVEMBER

There aren't too many people around here anyway. WHISKEY

Not anymore. NOVEMBER

What do you do? WHISKEY

Little of this; little of that. NOVEMBER

(November pulls out two model airplanes.)

Airplanes? WHISKEY

Made these last night. NOVEMBER

You sell models? WHISKEY

Nope. Just make them. NOVEMBER

(Whiskey reaches out to touch one but November snatches them away.)

NOVEMBER
Got pieces made of every tree on this planet. That's what makes them so special.

(November tosses one of the airplanes to Whiskey.)

Good luck. NOVEMBER

Hey, wait. WHISKEY

Now's not really a good time. NOVEMBER

For what? WHISKEY

Small talk. NOVEMBER

I don't want to small talk. I want a job. WHISKEY

And I told you I can't help you. NOVEMBER

Look, I'm not a greedy person. WHISKEY

NOVEMBER

Nobody said anything about greed. I just don't have anything for you. You're going to have to go into town and see what the county's got.

WHISKEY

How much do you want for your shirt?

NOVEMBER

Which shirt?

WHISKEY

The one you're wearing.

NOVEMBER

It's not for sale. Why?

WHISKEY

If I make you an offer—

NOVEMBER

It's not for sale. They sell clothes in town.

WHISKEY

I need a shirt so I can get a job in town.

NOVEMBER

What's wrong with your shirt?

WHISKEY

It's old.

NOVEMBER

I can't tell.

WHISKEY

I don't have any money, but I can pay you in trade. I have fruit. Apples. We just went shopping.

NOVEMBER

Forget about it.

WHISKEY

Please.

NOVEMBER

I wish I could help.

(Whiskey grabs November by the sleeve.)

WHISKEY

I'm asking you to be a good person!

(November pushes Whiskey away.)

NOVEMBER

It's the only shirt I have.

(Pause.)

NOVEMBER

Okay? You can look. Look if you don't believe me!

WHISKEY

Okay.

NOVEMBER

Okay?

WHISKEY

I didn't realize that.

(November walks away. Whiskey follows him.)

WHISKEY

I didn't mean anything by that. I get a little carried away. Hey, man—

(Whiskey puts his hand on November's shoulder. November punches him in the jaw. Whiskey falls to the ground.)

NOVEMBER

Don't touch me.

(Whiskey jumps up and shoves November. They fight and fight. November grabs his knife, the one he uses to make things.)

18. Echo & Charlie

(Door museum.)

CHARLIE

And we're back where we started.

ECHO

The red door. I remember.

CHARLIE

We—I—paint it every year for good measure. No creaking just yet.

ECHO

Do people actually come here?

CHARLIE

You're here.

ECHO

It's quite a place.

CHARLIE

It's an idea really.

My Uncle Henry likes to say, you can shut the door, but that doesn't mean you get to forget what's on the other side.

Do you want like some tea or something? I guess I don't really know if I have—

ECHO

No. Thank you.

CHARLIE

You should hear the kid who's taking over. He tells the best stories. I was hoping he would be here—

ECHO

Maybe I'll come back. If—you know, if you—don't die.

CHARLIE

Right.

ECHO

Couldn't jump in the lake?

CHARLIE

Falling is hard.

I thought about it. I really did, for a second. But then—

ECHO

Then?

CHARLIE

I like—realized. I thought about it and realized there's more to be done. Work.

ECHO
Right. Life goes on.

CHARLIE
We're going into new territory now.

ECHO
How do you mean?

CHARLIE
Expanding. Used to just focus on little things—flowers and houses. We're bigger than that now.

ECHO
Bigger than what?

CHARLIE
You almost said yes, didn't you, last time?

ECHO
I almost did.

CHARLIE
And that's what I thought. I was replaying it in my head—and the way you looked at me. And the way you sat and you were quiet and you were like—thinking.

ECHO
I thought about it, yes. But a house is—

CHARLIE
Not good enough. I know. I had to start small. It was nothing personal.

ECHO
Okay.

CHARLIE
But see, today we got a heart.

ECHO Heart?

CHARLIE Broken.

ECHO
I don't—

CHARLIE

I mean—a heart. You know, if you're in the market.

ECHO

I didn't realize there was money in that.

CHARLIE

Oh, yeah, there's a market. Huge. Huge market. People don't see what they're not looking for. You think back now—just think how many hearts, broken, you saw in the last year—the last month even. A lot, right?

ECHO

I mean, I don't—

CHARLIE

Yeah, there's a huge market.

ECHO

For broken hearts.

CHARLIE

Times are hard.

ECHO

How much?

CHARLIE

That's what I'm saying—we'll talk. If you're interested.

ECHO

And if I don't—?

CHARLIE

I'll die.

ECHO

Except you won't. Because you never do.

CHARLIE

—haven't. yet.

(A moment. Echo takes a newspaper out of her bag.)

ECHO

I know I should've asked you—

(Charlie cleans his glasses and holds the paper closer to his face.)

ECHO

They only gave me fifty dollars. I don't have the money anymore.
If you want something, I can give it to you the next time—

CHARLIE

That's me?

ECHO

Those are your flowers.

CHARLIE

Those are my hands?

ECHO

The other day when you were holding—

CHARLIE

It looks like we meant it. Doesn't it? Like our timing was just—and the light—right?

ECHO

It does.

CHARLIE

And the way my hands are like—at an angle. And the way the petals are there—and the leaves. You saw this?

ECHO

It's not a big deal. You can keep it. It was like a dollar.

(Charlie carefully tears the picture out of the paper, folds it and puts it into his shirt pocket. A moment.)

CHARLIE

How's your blood?

ECHO

When it happened to my mother, it came and she went all in one breath.
But I'm still here.

CHARLIE

Do you ever listen to like rock and roll?

ECHO

Not ever.

CHARLIE

You should. You'd like it, I think. There's this song about freedom. I think you'd like that one. It was around from when I was a kid but it didn't mean as much back then, you know?

(Charlie hands Echo a hand-carved picture frame.)

CHARLIE

For your pictures.

ECHO

How much?

CHARLIE

No, no, it's just— You can start a collection or whatever.

ECHO

(reading the border of the frame)

There are wars in winter. There are wars in spring.

There are wars in summertime. But there are also doors.

CHARLIE

See, it's got your first one in there already. The boat with the almost-purple sky that you can't see because it's in black and white.

I feel like we've known each other long enough that I can tell you something.

ECHO

Okay.

CHARLIE

I've never sold anything a day in my life. I keep things. That's what I do.

(Charlie lights a cigarette.)

CHARLIE

Do you smoke?

You don't smoke.

Do you mind?

19. Delta & Kilo

(Delta is asleep on the pile of clothes. Kilo enters with her map out in front of her. She sees Delta. She kneels beside her.)

KILO

You used to sleep with both eyes open.

(Delta wakes. She sees Kilo. She throws her arms around her. She breaks away. She looks at her.)

DELTA

What are you—

KILO

Hey.

DELTA

What are you doing here?

KILO

Just passing through.

(They hold each other for a moment.)

DELTA

Are you hungry? Do you want something to eat?

KILO

What do you have?

DELTA

What do you like? We went shopping last night.

(Kilo rifles through Delta's things, finds a bit of bread, eats.)

DELTA

You look the same.

KILO

It hasn't been that long.

DELTA

No?

KILO

I haven't eaten in days.

DELTA

You have to travel light.

KILO

I'm shriveling. They say the fingers are the first to go. They don't feel anything anymore.

DELTA

Are you hurt?

KILO

No. Are you?

DELTA

They got my leg.

(Delta pulls up her pant leg to reveal a wooden leg. Kilo touches the wood.)

DELTA

It happened so fast.

KILO

They say that's how it happens.
You were brave.

(Pause.)

KILO

So?

DELTA

What?

KILO

Where's the old boy?

DELTA

Oh. He went out to look for a job.

KILO

Gotta pay the bills.

(Delta hands Kilo a bowl of apple-sauce.)

KILO

I'm in the woods—everything's exploding, people are screaming, everything's getting louder, everything's getting closer, and I'm all alone.

DELTA

What do you mean you're all alone?

KILO

I'm all alone, and I think I'm about to die. I'm confessing all my sins, making peace with the clouds and I look up, out, and I see this boat. Far away, but close enough that I can tell it's a boat. And if there's a boat, there's water. And if I can just get to the water, I can swim across it, get to the other side. And I'm telling myself, That's ridiculous; that's stupid; this is what you signed up for: Fight. But then there's a guy and he's coming straight at me and all I have is my gun and I could shoot him. And I could shoot him or, there's this boat. And so I just—I don't know what happened. I just—I started just swimming. Toward this boat. And the whole time I'm thinking I'm this animal, that I have to go back, just take whatever punishment they give me, and get back in there. But I'm so far in. I'm halfway across. I'm almost there. I'm here. And then I'm here and I see you. And it's like a sign. —What is this?

DELTA

It's just a sauce we make.

KILO

And you're like this sign that I'm heading in the right direction. I mean, right?

DELTA

You just left?

KILO

Do you remember those people on the other side of the hill?
I can't forget them. Every time I close my eyes—
Your whole leg, huh?

DELTA

You can't go home.

KILO

My grandmother has a place up North. A whole farm with chickens and goats. And a horse, I think?

(indicating on her map)

I figure if I stay on this path here, follow the lake straight through here maybe—I should run right into it one day.

DELTA

Why don't you stay here? With us. It's safe—

KILO

I miss my grandmother.

DELTA
Right.

KILO
Do you have a grandmother?

DELTA
Used to.

KILO
They're special.

DELTA
They are special.

KILO
And when winter comes, she'll need me. To help. She's got all this land. I guess she thinks I can make something of it.

DELTA
You can.

KILO
Maybe. There's blood on my hands, remember?

(Kilo makes another sandwich.)

KILO
What about you? Been home yet?

DELTA
I'm not ready. It used to be you could get in, get out, boom. bah. bam. and be done with it. Not everything was a parade. You know? These days, everybody wants to stay, feel. Take up time, space. Be. Tell. Like they've got something to prove. I did all my proving the day I was born. I came out: "See, I made it! I showed you!"

KILO
Now you're all proved out.

DELTA
War is war, you know? I don't want to talk about it.

(Kilo laughs, then falls silent.)

20. Juliatt & November

(The porch. Juliatt enters with a badly-injured November. His fists and arms are bloody and bruised. They are silent for a moment as Juliatt tends to him. He folds and unfolds his pocket-knife which is also bloody.)

NOVEMBER

You want to know why I live on a broken boat when I have a perfectly good house two feet away? Because it smells like my parents and my brothers and my sisters and I walk into that house and I feel them and I forget. I forget about the war. And I forget that they're not here. And then I remember—and it kills.
And I've tried to be a good person. For them, you know? Tried to be who they would've been if they'd had the time, but I made a mistake.

JULIETT

Where does it hurt?

NOVEMBER

God. Please. Say you believe me.

JULIETT

What's bleeding?

NOVEMBER

Everything.

JULIETT

I'm going to take off your shirt. Is that okay?

NOVEMBER

Go crazy.

(Juliatt removes his shirt.)

JULIETT

It's bad, I think. We should go to the hospital.

NOVEMBER

No.

JULIETT

Don't be stupid.

(November works to pull a flask from his back pocket.)

NOVEMBER
No. Use this.

JULIETT
I'm not a doctor.

NOVEMBER
Come on!

(Juliett pours the contents of the flask onto the balled up shirt and presses it against a gaping wound. November screams, then breathes.)

NOVEMBER
(singing – Ain't We Got Fun)
*Every morning,
Every evening,
Ain't we got fun?*

(He breathes.)

NOVEMBER
(singing)
*Not much money,
Oh, but honey,
Ain't we got fun?*

(He breathes.)

NOVEMBER
(singing)
*The rent's unpaid dear,
We haven't a bus.*

(He breathes.)

NOVEMBER
(singing)
*But smiles were made, dear,
For people like us.*

(November screams.)

JULIETT
I don't know what I'm doing!

NOVEMBER

You're helping.

(November puts his hand over Juliett's, helps her press the shirt against his side. He breathes.)

NOVEMBER

You're the best friend I've ever had, do you know that?

JULIETT

You have to turn yourself in.

NOVEMBER

It was a fight. Square. If we were standing six inches to the left, it could've been me. If the weather was different or the time, it could've been me. If the wind was coming from the east instead of the west— It's just the way the— It could've happened to anyone. I swear to god. You believe me, don't you? You have to believe me. You're the best friend I've ever had.

(He hugs her.)

NOVEMBER

Let's run away. I'm serious. I'm serious.

JULIETT

I'm still in school.

NOVEMBER

You don't want to go back and you know it. Those people don't understand you. Their lives are perfect. You and me, we're screwed up. Let's—join the circus. You can be a clown. We can be elephant tamers! Just the two of us.

(Juliett kisses him.)

NOVEMBER

—Do you believe me? My story?
You have to believe me! You're all I have left.

(Juliett is silent.)

NOVEMBER

You don't believe me.

JULIETT

I believe you.

NOVEMBER

No, see— You're just—

JULIETT

It was an accident.

NOVEMBER

I slipped up. I lost my head. I thought you of all people would understand.

JULIETT

You have to turn yourself in.

NOVEMBER

Stop saying that! And what—spend the last seventeen years of my life in some four by eight like your father?

JULIETT

You don't know anything about my father.

NOVEMBER

I read the papers. I know who you are. I know what he did.
Say you believe me. Please.

(Pause.)

NOVEMBER

When a soldier gets killed in the line of duty, they take her bracelet off and send it to the family with a condolence letter. I have seven.
I'm screwed up—same as you.

JULIETT

You're screwed up—same as me.

(November throws the knife into the woods.)

NOVEMBER

The sky is bright tonight, Juliett.
I'm a sucker for a bright star.

Epilogue.

(The coast. Juliett and Delta and Echo with their mother's ashes.
They are still and silent for a moment.)

What should we say? JULIETT

What was her favorite song? ECHO

You should've brought your guitar. DELTA

I don't play anymore. JULIETT

She broke it. ECHO

Another one? DELTA

It was an accident. JULIETT

What song would she play? ECHO

Whatever song. She liked them all. JULIETT

That's true. DELTA

She liked slow songs. ECHO

Ballads. DELTA

She liked love songs. JULIETT

And hot tea. ECHO

And warm breezes. DELTA

JULIETT
And dancing.

ECHO
And apple trees.

JULIETT
And—what songs do they sing in war?

DELTA
War songs.

JULIETT
Right. Yeah. She liked those.

(Pause.)

DELTA
She married a man, had three beautiful daughters, and lived a good life.

JULIETT
She married a monster, had three beautiful daughters, and lived a life.

ECHO
She married a monster, had three daughters, and lived until she died.

DELTA
She was a good mother.

JULIETT
The best.

ECHO
That's true.

And now all that's left of her is dust.

(They each scatter a bit of their mother's ashes into the ocean.
Delta sets up a camera. While Echo pours: a recording of Echo, age 8, and her mother:

ECHO, AGE 8
Mom? You look tired. Are you tired?
Mom, can we go to the desert?
Mom, you're far away again.

MOTHER

Ants. Duh.

Ants?
MOTHER

ECHO, AGE 8
Not desert ants. The regular ones. They just crawled to the desert. They're visiting their cousins to say goodbye and stuff before they head off to the war.

(Juliatt adjusts the camera. While Delta pours:

What are regular ants?
MOTHER

Like red ones.
ECHO, AGE 8

Red ants are regular?
MOTHER

Yes. No, I'm saying they can be red.
ECHO, AGE 8

But they don't have to be?
MOTHER

Mom.
ECHO, AGE 8

I'm trying to understand.
MOTHER

ECHO, AGE 8

*We can go to the desert.
What do you want to do in the desert?*
MOTHER

(Echo sets the timer. While Juliatt pours:

ECHO, AGE 8

*We should take the girls. And we should take their pictures.
Because, you know why? They're not going to be babies forever.
Mom?*

MOTHER

Go. Go get dressed.

ECHO, AGE 8

And wake the babies?

MOTHER

Gently. Be nice.

(The sisters stand together. They arrange and rearrange themselves.
The camera flashes. Blackout.)

(End of play.)
