Announcement

THE IOWA HISTORY CENTER at Simpson College seeks nominations for its award for the outstanding master's thesis in Iowa history for 2016. Selection will be based on contribution to the knowledge of Iowa history; originality of the subject matter or methodology; use of sources; and written expression. Nominees must have completed their master's degree between July 1, 2015, and June 30, 2016.

The winner will be announced in the fall of 2016 and receive a $1,000 cash prize and an award plaque. Three copies of the thesis and a brief letter of nomination from the thesis advisor, which includes contact information for the nominee, should be submitted to Bill Friedrichs, Director, Iowa History Center, Simpson College, 701 North C Street, Indianola, IA 50125. Application deadline is June 30, 2016.

For further information, please contact Linda Sinclair, (515) 961-1528 or linda.sinclair@simpson.edu.

DOUGLAS BIGGS is professor of history and associate dean of the College of Natural and Social Sciences at the University of Nebraska-Kearney. He is a native of Ames and holds a B.A. and an M.A. from Iowa State University. He earned his Ph.D. from the University of Minnesota in 1996, specializing in late fourteenth- and early fifteenth-century England. He writes extensively on the reigns of Richard II (1377-1399) and Henry IV (1399-1413) and is a Fellow of the Royal Historical Society. He has worked to develop a new research field in Iowa history to support UNK's Public History/Regional History initiative.

JENNIFER ROBIN TERRY is a doctoral candidate in history at the University of California, Berkeley. Her research focuses on the intersection of government policy, American culture, and childhood during World War II and the Cold War period. She previously published an article on the World War II internment of American and British children in the Philippines. Her essay on girls' wartime agricultural labor is forthcoming in an edited volume later this year.
