TO MYSELF (IN SEPTEMBER HELD)

Like a teardrop that though of many Teardrops composed, singly hangs
In a lid (in a likewise face that's a Compote of its blanched worshippers' (and this in A world gleaming, 'bout to fall: you,

Licking come off the mirage's coin-return,

Smile like a hairbrush among Whose bristles is dying in orange
Agony an orgy you were the animate sub-titles of (deb

Utante, a corsage of mouths on your blue groin, haut-cries
Lemmings
Loving in mid air make

Till peak of peace splatters and their pupil deigns (for
As all things bear the seed of heaven,

Starred by half ripe prisms that thud in
A garden mendacious with days: where the sun

Around we truth
Like a myopia of monuments, together-sifting, sigh-pendant on the (your patchouli-drop face elsewhere

On its errands of leafwreck) shore of that Giant green information receding
Back down the throat of who is being tortured for it

But won't talk: my tongue will be
Your cunt's hermit while you demurely rape an amputation
Of clocks who serenade the past as Summer stakes all its gold on one last throe (and once

For our lodging, you could never decide
Between shoulders or shudders: a blind date with your own Genitals / the way the foreplay sketches-in What the fucking paints (ochers, scarlets—pipings whirled, calm-away

(Nail a mirror over the foamy palette Dip in a brush and) Dip a lash in that tear and)
