

1972

Chopping for the A-Frame

Ray Amorosi

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Amorosi, Ray. "Chopping for the A-Frame." The Iowa Review 3.3 (1972): 10-10. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.1371>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

CHOPPING FOR THE A-FRAME

This will be a good sensation.
Drop the legs off that one and move the whole pile closer to the house.
Careful, it all has a definite history. For instance, these beech trees mean the forest will die soon. The silver birch marks another stage, a casual decadence. Yes, and I wonder who will say how when you cut my knees I kneeled on their grateful stumps slowly grazing through all your long, tedious groves.

VAMPIRE

She was cute, frizzled dead
the theatre itself was done in a Sicilian landscape, a few wistful moustaches some young donkeys an overripe gully of tomatoes

But her kiss was even more Sicilian than the walls I wanted her bed dress down over my own neck
the congenial privilege;
sing with her put your mouth on the water why don't you just put your mouth
on the water . . .