

1972

Notes on contributors and back matter, The Iowa Review, v.3 no.3, Summer, 1972

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Recommended Citation

. "Notes on contributors and back matter, The Iowa Review, v.3 no.3, Summer, 1972." The Iowa Review 3.3 (1972) Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.1405>

This Back Matter is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

BILL KNOTT (formerly St. Gerard formerly Bill Knott [1940-1946]) continues to be one of the most original, eccentric, and exciting young poets in America. His latest book is Auto-necrophilia (Big Table Books). The poems in this issue are from a new book, Love Poems to Myself, to be published by the Barn Dream Press in 1972.

RAY AMOROSI recently returned from Algiers where he was robbed, beaten and nearly starved to death. Before that he was a guest lecturer at N. Adams State College where he was robbed, beaten and nearly starved to death. He's recently married and just finished a book, Panic's Tattoo.

LAWRENCE RUSS is the youngest poet (21) in this predominantly young poet's issue. He lives in Amherst, Massachusetts, and will have poems in Paul Carroll's new anthology.

JANE SHORE is a fellow at Radcliffe Institute in Cambridge, Massachusetts. She took her M.F.A. from the Poetry Workshop last year.

HERBERT SCOTT teaches at Western Michigan University, has published a few chap-books, and has had poems in many magazines.

SANDRA MCPHERSON's first book, Elegies for the Hot Season, was published in 1970. In 1972 she was a recipient of an Ingram Merrill Foundation grant.

MICHAEL S. HARPER has two more books forthcoming: I Want a Witness (Pittsburgh) and Debridement (Doubleday). He teaches at Brown.

FRANK STANFORD has got to be one the strangest poets around. Right now he's living in a monastery in Alabama where he likes to borrow a horse, ride into the mountains, and meet strange girls. He's 22 years old and the poems in this issue are from an early manuscript called St. Francis and the Wolf: Some Poems 1957-1964. This means, obviously, the poems in this issue were written when he was about 12 years old.

ANTHONY LIBBY teaches modern literature at Ohio State University and has published articles on modern poetry and contemporary politics.

ROBERT BLY is energetic, indomitable, and the editor of the Seventies. His second book, The Light Around the Body, won the National Book Award in 1968.

CYNTHIA LOFSNESS now lives in Minneapolis.

WILLIAM STAFFORD is teaching "the Roethke courses" at the University of Washington this summer. In the fall he will be lecturing on American poetry in India, Nepal, Iran, etc. By spring he will be back teaching at Lewis and Clark College.

GEOFFREY HILL, a well-known poet in England, is the author of For the Unfallen, Mercian Hymns, and King Log.

JON SILKIN is the editor of Stand which just celebrated its fiftieth anniversary issue. His latest book is Amana Grass from Wesleyan.

NANCY DIBBLE is 29, 64 inches tall, a published poet, and this is her first published short story.

GAIL GODWIN just finished a year as a Fellow at the Center for Advanced Study, Urbana, Illinois. Her novel, The Perfectionists, came out in 1970; another novel, Glass People (Knopf), is due out in September.

DONALD HALL's most recent books of poems are The Alligator Bride (Harper and Row) and The Yellow Room Love Poems (Harper and Row, 1971). His stories have appeared in the New Yorker and Esquire. He is currently writing a biography of Charles Laughton. In September, Dutton will publish his limericks in The Mature Gentleman's Alphabet Book.

BILL KITTREDGE is a brilliant young writer from Oregon (where he once owned and operated a ranch about the size of Delaware). His stories have appeared in The Atlantic and most of the good quarterlies.

JOHN O'BRIEN is living with the Athapascan Indians, 200 miles into the Alaskan bush, 30° below, dogsleds, etc. "Birds" is his first published story.

Ploughshares

1|2

edited by George Kimball fiction by John Bart Gerald, Richard Grossinger, Henry H. Roth, Geoffrey Clark, Fanny Howe anti-drama by James Tate, Edward Dorn

an interview with Beckett by David Gullette

poetry by Desmond O'Grady, David Ignatow, Hugh Seidman, Paul Hannigan, Thomas Lux, Larry Eigner, Tom Weatherly, Aram Saroyan, William Corbett, Joyce Peseroff, David Berman, David Ball, Maura Stanton, James Humphrey, Paula Janowitz and others

portfolio of art by Calvin Burnett reviews by William Corbett, DeWitt Henry available by mail (for $2.00) from Ploughshares, Inc., Box 529, Cambridge, Mass. 02139. Subscriptions: $8.00/four issues; $50.00/life (yours or ours). Ad rates on request.

an occasional of the arts

THE SOUTHERN REVIEW

July, 1972

ROBERT PENN WARREN
on
MARK TWAIN

ESSAYS

Marvin Fisher and Michael Elliott, "Pudd'nhead Wilson:
Half a Dog Is Worse Than None"

Robert B. Heilman, "Humanistic Education as Comedy:
A Funambulist's Analogy"

Thomas Daniel Young on John Crowe Ransom

POETRY

Jean Garrigue, Catharine Savage Brosman, Daniel Hoffman, and others

FICTION

Padma Perera, "Birthday Deathday"

Harris Downey, "Silversleeve's Love Affair"

OTHER ESSAYS

REVIEWS

SUBSCRIBE NOW

Business Manager, The Southern Review
Drawer D, University Station
Baton Rouge, La. 70803

Beginning with the April/July (circle one) issue, please enter my subscription to The Southern Review:

Name:

Address:

..... Zip Code:

1 year—$5.00

2 years—$9.00

3 years—$13.00