

1975

Alice

Michael S. Harper

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Harper, Michael S. "Alice." The Iowa Review 6.2 (1975): 7-8. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.1824>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Are teaching one god
They are ripping the limbs
Off our fetishes
They are carving the sea
Monsters from our totems They made a pile of our Wood sculpture and set fire
To it

Julian
Come back
Rude hags
Have crashed the senate And are spitting on the Elders

Meanwhile, Julian
The perennial art major Ponders in the right wing
Of the monastery museum

The Egyptian collection

Alice / Michael S. Harper

"The word made stone, the stone word"

"A RITE is an action the very form of which is the result of a Divine Revelation."

I

You stand waist-high in snakes beating the weeds for the gravebed a quarter mile from the nearest relative, an open field in Florida: lost, looking for Zora, and when she speaks from her sunken chamber to call you to her side, she calls you her distant cousin, her sister come to mark her burial place with bright black stone.
She has known you would do this—her crooked stick, her straight lick—and the lie you would have to tell to find her, and that you lied to her relatives in a conjure-riddle of the words you have uttered, calling her to communion.

A black rock of ages you have placed where there was no marker, and though the snakes abound in this preserve from ancestral space, you have paid your homage in traditional line, the face open:
your face in the woman-light of surrender toughened in what you were.

II

Floods of truth flow from your limbs of these pages in a vision swollen in experience and pain:
that child you stepped into blossom of a man's skull beaten into smile of submission, you gathering horse nectar for offering over a baby's crusted gasp, for centuries of motherhood and atonement for which you write, and the rite written.

And for this I say your name: Alice,
my grandmother's name, your name, conjured in snake-infested field where Zora Neale welcomed you home, and where I speak from now on higher ground of her risen black marker where you have written your name in hers, and in mine.

for Alice Walker