

1980

Vocation

Ben Howard

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Howard, Ben. "Vocation." The Iowa Review 11.2 (1980): 103-103. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.2589>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Vocation · Ben Howard

The hay is dry. And in their innocence
Two pheasants sun themselves
In the quiet amplitude of late July.
One wonders where such calm
Originates, and what toothed beasts
Lie under. Here is the mind's
Fork in the road: for one might choose
To skate upon appearances'
Recumbent skin—or choose to turn
Inward, churning up lethal snakes,
Spiders, worms, and who knows what
Pernicious cluster. To peel back bark,
Lift rocks, and rake
The skein of complacency from things:
That is the mind's peculiar Vocation. And yet what still
And cool elation
The stirrings of consciousness perturb and conquer.