

1980

After Mayakovsky

David Ray

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Ray, David. "After Mayakovsky." The Iowa Review 11.2 (1980): 193-193. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.2610>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

After Mayakovsky · David Ray

Why donate blood to suicide is what the Russian poet asked. You might as well wander like a ghost to each quaint hotel and fill the crystal inkwell up or plot some grand historic novel that would not interest even you as a reader. Or tell your favorite stone what you conceive as hell.
Or just sit and count everything you've got.
But tell me what it is that whores might write,
grateful for the work, with red trembling lip.
These girls will rake their brains throughout the night,
each at a tiny desk, beside a cup.
And salesmen too will rise from squeaky beds
to undertake revisions with bowed heads.