

1985

Tie

James Reiss

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Reiss, James. "Tie." The Iowa Review 15.1 (1985): 85-85. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.3184>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Tie · James Reiss

This hand-sewn silk twill tie with an orange and black geometric motif suggests an eighteenth century Japanese lacquer —
or head band worn by a hermit scholar.
Squinting into the candlelight,
he practiced calligraphy till the lantern
glinted, night-warm, on his wrist
and he felt he could freely transcribe:

“Dusk sets out over the valley
on a new career every night.
My Lord Yoshimune writes that he is tired
of life as a public servant.
I grow bonzai trees, tiny replicas of evergreens, yet I have never seen such precision of thought expressed in cloud formations. . . .”

He paused to wipe his forehead with this tie.