

1986

Excerpt from the Poem "Milk Song"

Frances Jaffer

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Jaffer, Frances. "Excerpt from the Poem "Milk Song"." The Iowa Review 16.3 (1986): 250-251. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.3439>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

I won't sit still

* *

Drink it?
Any time now the world will turn,
and the popcorn,
late in the bowl—

Morning, is it a mortal flare? Laughing ourselves awake we stare, tanager, columbine, holding sunlight in our teeth

EXCERPT FROM THE POEM "MILK SONG"

venus venom the long loss is it the great beauty she hears the lullaby the wide song the lap the lost sweet curve of milk the rubber squeek the melody drains into dark she throws it back the mouthful the mistake

the dying the almost dead through the last tiny finger the milky the tiny living

milky song

healer voice rocking

lying in milk the baby the sick venom she could not atone striking the great gone blue-red

Mother to strive for to win to strive to lose

*