1990

The Story of Our Lives

Michael Carey

Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview
Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.3838

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.
My father is gone.
It is no longer now,
it is thousands of years
before man existed,
the horizon strangely red
and burning.

THE STORY OF OUR LIVES

for Arlen and Fran Gangwish

The buzzing of flies
over a carcass.

The promise of life
in the seed and the rain and the soil.

Every morning our eyes
come to rest on the horizon.

Such a large sky full of emptiness,
clouds heavy with air and floating water.

These are our children growing ever closer to leaving.

Nothing so near as distance.

THE REASON FOR POETRY

There are only two chickens left now
since the wild dogs got done with them.
They don't seem to care, those that remain,
cooing in the coop with a tank full of water and cracked corn they couldn't finish in a season.
I'll never get over how real the world is
and yet, how easily it disappears,