1991

From "The Wheel Is Turning: The Struggle Moves Forward"

Alfred Temba Qabula

Follow this and additional works at: http://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.
from The Wheel Is Turning—The Struggle Moves Forward · Alfred Temba Qabula

1.
Kill them all—the dogs.
Because, they say, they are becoming smarter.
They do not discriminate: the ignorant and the wise—exterminated But still, truth remains unchanging it cannot change and lying causes anger Our heads—held high they hide theirs
The struggle moves forward backwards never.

2.
The English arrived—and we were made ministers of religion teachers and clerks taught to be kind, humble, trusting and full of respect but ignorant of the ways our country was governed we began losing whatever we cherished for hope.
4.
The struggle moves forward backwards never
the wagon wheels turn and their sound's echo can be heard in our hearts and our souls: the rightful owner of the coat stands freezing rain soaking his bones shredded by frost and cold winds But you? You are smug For your children? Only the best and he? the crumbs and troubles a stranger coatless in his rightful place.

6.
The struggle moves forward never backwards at all.
The earth has been gulping innocent blood —the first blood spilled in this struggle the very same earth we fought to retain since then we have noticed your conscience pricking your heart has found no peace days and nights you use for pacing

7.
You pace up and down as ammunition you cargo on innocent people Coward
you are smudging the prospect of light Your Casspirs, your teargas and guns your vans and your dogs do not dampen the fire they feed it.
11.
So many people detained and so many people killed that resistance should have been over by now But the wagon-wheel turns rolling forward and the struggle continues Your rulers' merciless detensions and jails malfunction
    and the struggle continues

13.
Now we are your lambs for slaughter We are a torturing game for your friends you look on and laugh at us when we demand our rights when we condemn exploitation and shout about our unpaid labours you lead us onto paths full of traps but your days and those of your friends have been numbered and your friends will gladly give you away 14.

And then, when our children complain of their gutter education? you deliver them for slaughter too but remember you do not weaken our struggle it strengthens 15.
The day is near when your murderous weapons will stand witness for the higher judges of truth who won't be bribed with your money and then the filth of your deeds will become known Then we shall clasp you with the steady grip of our hands 19.

When we gather,
   singing and orating our movement's slogans, we know that the souls of the people you have killed are with us in the struggle Your tyranny cannot overpower our struggle ours continues going forward — backwards never
the wheel is turning by tomorrow you shall be trying to flee but you shall be eating dust stamped to the ground like a snake — a trying punishment awaits you.

20.
The wheel is turning
Oppressor — wake up!
Beware and be conscious of what you are up to Tomorrow the throne you occupy will become just another seat for others the others whom you hate will not allow you to forget their injuries which you have inflicted
The wheel is turning
   and there shall be no mercy for those killing innocent children.
The wheel is turning freedom is nearer our strength and our dignity — increasing we shall conquer as your time is coming up.

22.
Even for those you did not look like an oppressor who ignored your actions and respected you, you are becoming a monster they do not trust you anymore they do not address you as a friend you are becoming an enemy.
Even those who ignored our struggles have opened their eyes in horror because you do not discriminate and your bullets do not discriminate everyone's up for the killing 25.

The wheel is turning
the struggle moves forward
backwards, never
the day is drawing closer when not a single person shall again be killed by your bullets. but the people you have killed—their blood sucked dry by this drought-stricken earth, all those killed by amabutho they will rise up from the graveyards and with their bare hands shall tear you to shreds But you will not die
You will wish you were dead but you won't be.
26. The wheel is turning
   the struggle moves forward
   backwards never your sun is setting your days draw near your friends, your allies and your propagandists they will desert you they shall climb on platforms in front of people and denounce you.

The struggle continues and your Saracens your machine-guns and sten-guns your aeroplanes your Casspirs and your kwela-kwelas your teargas shall not break our strength Your day is setting Maye, unto you that day.

29. The wheel is turning
    the struggle moves forward we are not to lose strength we die on the one side we rise on the other and continue on and on with our struggle until you become mad a lunatic oppressor wearing garlands of tree-leaves on your head and trying to end off your life because the struggle continues
    the wheel is turning.
we move on.
It was during the 1986 Dunlop strike, when we occupied the factory, that I composed and recited the poem you just have been reading: about the wheel turning and the struggle moving forward. It was also after my friend Toto Dwaba was assassinated and found dead at Umtunzini Sugar Plantation. His hands, one of his ears, one of his eyes and his tongue had been cut from his body. He was the Durban chairperson of the Release Mandela Campaign.

The other workers were very pleased with the poem. After a while one of my co-workers came and asked me to whom was this poem directed. I answered that the poem was not directed at anyone. It was rather a response to our situation now in the country. He said that I was lying and that the poem was talking about the Kwazulu authorities and government.

I said: “No, it can’t be because I am quite ignorant about Kwazulu politics. And anyway the poem could not be against them because they are also being governed by Pretoria, and they also suffer like all black people in South Africa.”

He said then that I should write something about the Kwazulu authorities. I said I don’t see myself ever doing that because I am ignorant of all these things. My aim was to praise the machine operators, the turners of wheels in the factories, the roadworkers, the diggers of gold and our organisations through which we were progressing. He left me without saying goodbye.

After a Saturday afternoon workshop on a play about M’kumbane, at about eight in the evening I returned to my uncle’s place, at Amauti, Inanda. My family said that there had been visitors looking for me who claimed to come from an organisation fighting against the removal of people from their places. They were looking for that poet: me. My family were worried because one of them had a revolver under his jacket and, as my little nephew noticed, the car had a Jo’burg registration number and a KwaZulu Police (ZP) third-party.

I told my kin that those people were no friends of mine and they should not co-operate with them. From then there were many more visits, which made me decide to leave home. I have been uprooted since then.