

1997

Betsy Breaks Up

Laura Wilder

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Wilder, Laura. "Betsy Breaks Up." The Iowa Review 27.2 (1997): 46-46. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.4875>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Laura Wilder

BETSY BREAKS UP

At the height of this melodrama she's in,
Betsy blanks:
What in the hell mean these rosebuds,
11 pink, 1 white?
Who in the hell'd send syrup ta suture wounds?
Ah, he would, 'course. How wrong.
And yet it's not written in her role to tell him.
She does not have the heart,
yet, that arrives in the cooler via whirlybird,
Act IV.
What mean these sweet, chewy jellies?
Why point you to the sugar which clings to their traffic light red, yellow, green?
Cut, cut, she's laughing and she knows that's not how it's written!

Yes, yes, she loves you, it's all coming back to her now. Yes, you're right, she must have said it. "More than once," and, "In the shower."
Certainly so. But wherefore have thou come now? How appear you so in this countenance so skinny and meek and pale and trembling?
Quite like a leaf, in the gutter, out front,
saturated in rain water and oil and whatever else,
struggling with a wind.
How does she, as you so say, "blow you off"?

She's grinding her teeth for Act II.
Sharper, to cut out of here,
she'll tear through coat, skin, and sinew.
Act III being murder, the director's scrambling for her long lost list of cues.