

1997

Autumn Apocalypse

Eugenius Ališanka

H. L. Hix

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Ališanka, Eugenius and H. L. Hix. "Autumn Apocalypse." The Iowa Review 27.2 (1997): 83-83. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.4889>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

from glacier to city, illusions oppose the seed of an apple every night,
in every room,
when one leaps from the highest cliff and never becomes present tense

★      ★      ★

devoted walls stood there, no one had a sword,
the hay bundled into a bouquet meant more than funeral chrysanthemums, fog rose and fell,
could any least syllable of loneliness escape november's yard

AUTUMN APOCALYPSE

toward the silence of plains of hard-frozen earth one beam bends, the heavy light settles slowly on the face and between the bell and night consonance, created unexpectedly, bears away dreams: right here, where are scorching winds, where the returning warrior bows to the reign of time, a hand has opened doors to twilight an eye shatters the view into the loneliness of things, but there is no heart, only pulses, premonitions, and a step beyond the rose traced by frost on burning windows