DEATH OF A UNION SOLDIER

We noticed yesterday the death, on the steamer, Des Moines City, of J. H. Brady, a member of Company D, Second Iowa Regiment, who was wounded at the charge of Fort Donelson. This young soldier was about eighteen years of age and was from Saylorville, in this county, where his parents reside. It is a sad reflection that after all his efforts to die among the associations of home he yielded up his life before the task was accomplished. Almost in sight of his home, his eyes closed on mortal scenes.

The funeral of the young soldier will take place at Saylorville this morning at half past ten o'clock. The discourse will be delivered at the church in the village, after which interment will take place at the Buzick grave-yard near Crawford's Mills, some four or five miles from Des Moines. Our citizens, as many as possible, ought to turn out.—Daily State Register, Des Moines, Iowa, May 2, 1862. (In the Newspaper Division of the Historical, Memorial and Art Department of Iowa.)
