

2001

A Guidebook to "Everybody's Business"

John Gallaher

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

---

Recommended Citation

Gallaher, John. "A Guidebook to "Everybody's Business"." The Iowa Review 31.3 (2001): 124-125. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.5463>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

John Gallaher

A GUIDEBOOK TO EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

You don't have to vocalize every thought you have, you know, Mira said, down in the mud room just past the drum room.

We've a secret, we said. No problem, we said.
So maybe hostility keeps us going? And certain kindred ideas, Katie said. But we've jumped ahead in time. The change was slight.

It'll be a souvenir folder of city views, we decided.
And that bit about water under the bridge,

that was great. So, several friends later, we find the scenery's still good. And how six of us were unfaithful somewhere near the sandy beaches. So what are your goals? we asked Mira, there in the shower. Katie decided to write it in a book and add to it

from her imagination. The skyline of San Francisco can be seen in the background. She was smiling now.
Pasties in space, we say. So Bill had sex with Steve who was wearing a dress. And the power of the atom, as Bill told us. They're on vacation, they said.

So the earth may be round, but the moon's obviously flat, we say. Everything's been proven by a recent study. Just look at it up there, Mira continues, with her hand in her pants. For many years

it was considered the greatest bridge in the world.
At least that's what Jane says. And she should know.
And 49 moons could fit inside the earth, you know.

But Shelly could fit 50, they say. And she's a penchant for accouterments
and outdoor activities. We've pictures, and excellent intentions. They did a little dance in the kitchen.

Their understanding as the work progressed
was a blessing. A mass of things. A communion.