

2003

Dear Devotional

Joshua Kryah

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Kryah, Joshua. "Dear Devotional." The Iowa Review 33.1 (2003): 27-27. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.5682>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

Dear Devotional

Bird, that I did not mean your song to make you target, only more a part of the menagerie, should absolve this ringing in my ears. The sepulcher swings upon its chain, a thick of incense goes up. The hounds are in pursuit of such wonder—the pilgrimage as begun by Dante, your plumage now stained irrevocably. No shirt, no soul, no service, reads the altar at which you labor. Breath interred, the engine forgets, remembers, forgets. The figure fades to vestige, becomes glyph rather than image, a vacant tent. Augur, they hold onto your breastbone's embraceable light.

They wait for their eyes to adjust, to be pecked out by birds.