

2007

Non-Arson Sonnets

John Colasacco

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Colasacco, John. "Non-Arson Sonnets." The Iowa Review 37.3 (2007): 21-21. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.6255>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

JOHN COLASACCO

Non-Arson Sonnets

after Bruce Smith

We're as baffled as we were when a year, but thinking about it since then, it first happened. I still know you the English channel, not as scary, are going to have the world's foremost examples of unconditional love whatever, face, et cetera, in a magazine. Extended bars until whenever Emily, across a man made out of fathers I hated saying all three burned himself to ridicule, happily, syllables. I could've looked it up.
By burned himself I mean all day long—somewhere if I had wanted to.
By whole day, I mean just the still could. Only one infinite segment of it. Like a joke panic, chances at it, the first amateur had to do with stabilizing us drop of this, I was able to by force, and crazed a little by the weather skin my hand while driving from you at nine, hot coffee, counting toward the car.
Rain was time or the other way that you're riding in already around, the same February with half of our events.