

2008

Dear City

Nicole Cooley

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Cooley, Nicole. "Dear City." The Iowa Review 38.1 (2008): 59-60. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.6408>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

NICOLE COOLEY

Dear City

For days the water holds on, will not release the city and from up here I can't hold on to you, my city,

*

*

can't reach my parents who refused to leave the city.

*

In school we were taught: shaped like a bowl this city

*

can't withstand the weight of too much water, city

*

braced by dirt levees, all the floodwalls cracking. City where I no longer live, where I am locked out, city

*

*

I lived in for so long, that has since lived in me, city

*

I must now watch on this computer screen, late-summer city—

*

“Watch the video of the worsening saturation of the city.”

*

“Watch the video account of unanswered screams.” City

*

fringed by a river, by a wide lake that spills over the city, oh, pale green city of my imagination. Now I can't carry you, city, can't shutter you tight within my body to stop the repeating

*

*

*

of our jump rope rhyme: Lost a city. Lost a city. Lost a city. Lost