Two Drafts Written After a Fight

I.
Do I love you: yes or no?
The question: Is love a figure of speech?

I do—sometimes. Everyone wonders about our love; still, there can be no doubt I have been true (almost always).

Happily remembering the start of our romance; it seemed so promising . . .

And is love continual happiness or not? Is not what matters?

I cannot tell you who I want to spend my life with.

Enough about our love.

II.
Do I love you? Yes or no—the question is, love, a figure of speech. I do.

(Sometimes everyone wonders.)
About our love, still, there can be no doubt.

I have been true, almost always happily remembering the start of our romance;

it seemed so promising, and is. Love, continual happiness or not is not what matters.

I cannot tell you, who I want to spend my life with, enough about our love.
