

Winter 2013

Stepping Toward Meltdown

Meredith Stricker

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Stricker, Meredith. "Stepping Toward Meltdown." The Iowa Review 43.3 (2013): 60-60. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.7296>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

STEPPING TOWARD MELTDOWN

I sit on a clearing favored by grass snakes weather is their motion, a blossom in the mouth of each snake's purple-black tongue

taking pleasure in infinitesimals, the discarded, overlooked, discredited drawn to the unfinished, the impossible to finish, resistant scraps half-eaten, scratched out tracks or scat scattered reprocessed mouse bones, gnawed manzanita berries

60 blinded, blindsided

as in entering brightness from the dark or the other way around don't imagine there is another paradise than this lost place, nothing split off from God's blow-back, nor apparent disregard nor love left out in the open