

Winter 2013

[I Find Every Stopgap Town]

Cate Lycurgus

Follow this and additional works at: <https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview>

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation

Lycurgus, Cate. "[I Find Every Stopgap Town]." The Iowa Review 43.3 (2013): 72-72. Web.
Available at: <https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.7308>

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.

CATE LYCURGUS

[I FIND EVERY STOPGAP TOWN]

I find every stopgap town
I alight has a hardware store display—dangling bulbs that hang at mismatched heights—so striking, the cords' industrial play, how a dangle of bulbs pretend themselves pendants of untethered light. Mistaken, their chords persevere in industry of bloom. I live in a pending light, untethered, kiss tender towns on the mouth—press here, there veer, away—pockets of miss surge, and tender a skyline of fraying wire. My short-circuit kismet spits along—socket-less, tripping—I try to pocket each window front's intensity of shine. Hang left at the access road where a stoplight swings in suspended night. Don't need to stop to see its glow plugged into the sky.