Quad City Grape Boycott Committee

Boycott Head Will Visit Q-C

Cesar Chavez, Delano, Calif., leader of the nationwide grape boycott, will speak in Davenport at a rally in support of the boycott at 8 p.m. Nov. 18 at Eagles Danceland, it was announced Saturday by John Terronez, chairman of the Quad-City Grape Boycott Committee.

Chavez rose to prominence as leader of the United Farm Workers Organizing Committee of the AFL-CIO, which was created to improve wages and living conditions of

The grape boycott picket lines also contained several youngsters who brought to mind the plight of children living in poverty in California.

Grape Strike Spurs Quad City Protest

DAVENPORT — "Huelga" and "Viva La Causa" are Spanish words which are translated into the word "trouble" for California grape growers who refuse to negotiate with the thousands of grape pickers who want to unionize.

The strike began relevant in the Iowa and Illinois Quad Cities on Saturday when between 20 workers — most of them Mexican-American — are pressing for protection under the National Labor Relations Act and union recognition by the growers for whom they work.

The farm workers, under the leadership of Cesar Chavez, allege that the growers have rejected all efforts to negotiate and have imported illegal labor to break the strike.

No Action

The United Farm Workers Organizing Committee, AFL-CIO, claims the federal government does nothing to stop the importation of workers from across the border by the growers.

The Quad City Boycott Committee issued a leaflet alleging some stores make it a practice to "deceive the consumers." The committee says some stores have mislabeled grape boxes and have dispensed misleading information about the origin of the grapes. "Consumers are told that the grapes are from Arizona or New York."

Some 40 picketers appeared Saturday morning at the National Tea store in Rock Island, Ill.; the Kruger Store in Moline, Ill.; and the Moline Turmanly Store, operated by the Jewel Tea Company.
