1970

[As a Stick That Divines]

Samuel Menashe

Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview
Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.1101
Whose domain no strife mars—
I am made whole by my scars
For whatever now displaces
Follows all that once was
And without loss stows
Me into my own spaces

The fifth line is flat; the remainder—with “hold” fulfilling its verbal and its nominal functions at once, and with the crucially meaningful submerged rhyme, “hollows . . . follows . . . stows”—is magnificent. And what is said holds as true of Gentile and personal wounds as of historical Jewish ones.

1 “Promised Land,” from The Many Named Beloved. All the poems I quote are given in their entirety.
2 The Many Named Beloved.
3 Ibid.
4 Ibid.
5 Ibid.

Four Poems by Samuel Menashe

As a stick that divines
I am tugged by what I see
Through sleep’s rough mine
Whose crystals encrust me