Dimensions of the Sign in Art
ALBERT COOK

A leading critic of text and image gives an insightful explanation of how signs are used in art. He explains how graphic elements such as color and mirrors can function as signs, paralleling linguistic structures. He discusses how paintings and sculptures interact with their titles and other words assigned to them by the artist, and thus strengthen their power to communicate. "The book is almost encyclopaedic in the range and precision of its references to various works, and provides lucid and penetrating analyses of the way signification operates in many of them"—James Heffernan. $35.00

Figural Choice in Poetry and Art
ALBERT COOK

"A strenuous critical effort, an analysis of modern poetry in relation to sculpture, principally, and to architecture—and how they influence poetic form and method ... The vastness of the author's learning is almost awesome"—Sewanee Review. $28.00

A Metapoetics of the Passage
Architectures in Surrealism and After
MARY ANN CAWS

Approaching the poetic text as a flux, a corridor, a ceremonial, a breach, a transition, Caws establishes the notion of passage in surrealist and contemporary French poetry in a manner that is both limited and vast." "Caws' analysis of some difficult contemporary poets is one of the most valuable contributions in this complex study of surrealist and postsurrealist architectures"—Comparative Literature. $22.00
"OCTOBER is among the most advanced journals of the 1970s and 1980s in the fields of art theory, criticism, history and practice. Its current editors... are intimately familiar with the cultural and political avant garde of Europe and the U.S. and are able to attract its best thinkers. . . . Few, if any, journals could receive a higher recommendation."—Choice

Recent issues include Walter Benjamin's Moscow Diary, the work of Georges Bataille, essays on art history, film, and photography. You'll find provocative and stimulating criticism—the most significant texts by and about leading contemporary artists, scholars, and critics—in each issue of OCTOBER.
