

Division of Gynecologic Oncology
Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology
University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics

Bradley J. Van Voorhis, MD

Interim Director Division of Gynecologic Oncology

The Division of Gynecologic Oncology at the University of Iowa consists of four attending physicians, three fellows-in-training, four advanced practice nurse practitioners, and nurses along with supporting research and clerical staff.

The division provides comprehensive care for women with gynecologic malignancies. The Gynecologic Oncology Division is part of the Holden Comprehensive Cancer Center with clinical services located on the third floor of the Pomerantz Family Pavilion within the Women's Health Clinic in the Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology.

The clinical work of the division encompasses all aspects of Gynecologic Oncology including complex surgeries, the administration of chemotherapy and radiation, and the management of critically ill patients as well as palliative care. Our clinicians are highly experienced in robotic, laparoscopic, and open surgical procedures and base their approach on individual considerations for each case. As a long standing full member of the Gynecologic Oncology Group and a Phase I institution we actively participate in clinical trial enrollment, which includes in-depth knowledge of the design and implementation of clinical trials research. Additionally we have a strong basic science and translational research component, which has resulted in many papers and presentations at national meetings.
