FROM MY SCARF DRAWER

A pretty girl at the seminar table comments that women begin to wear scarves for softness around the face when they are old.

Shall I tell her that the neck gets cold? No. Andrew Marvell wrote that.

This pretty chick has time/poems yet to do; some she will hide among silks.

POEM

Brandy & water an all right aperitif Shostakovich's Fifth a bad recording Chinese food filling Coffee at poet-friend’s grass going round
An all right filling round evening “good conversation” cop-out
No Fellini fountains
Antonioni vista parks
Godard tight shots
tight
goodnight
kiss
Home to bed
Mansfield’s Miss Brill
with her whimpering fur Lordy me life passes by Wuthering Heights is at Cinema I
Waterloo at II
Next week East Lynne?
