and lifted in his hands the spirit-dust; gave to the world chameleon his singing heart and sacrificed upon the alter fame his glowing candle fire of life and love.
Remembering, we pause to honor him but knowing well the Ages honor beat his image frail and pure, while millions here behold his comet-star and see its flaming trail burst brilliantly across the burning sky.
We hold aloft his laughter-breaking, black, and bitter songs, and his immortal name.

Two Egyptian Portrait Masks / Robert Hayden

i Nefert-iti
A memory carved on stelae of the city Akhenaten built for God—Fair of face Joyous with the Double Plume Mistress of Happiness Endowed with Favor at hearing whose Voice one rejoices Lady of Grace Great of Love whose disposition cheers the Lord of Two Lands—whose burntout loveliness alive in stone is like the living fire of gems dynastic death (gold mask and vulture wings) charmed her with so she would never die.

ii Akhenaten Upon the mountain Aten spoke and set the spirit moving

26 in the Pharoah's heart: O Lord of every land shining forth for all:

Aten
multi-single like the sun reflecting Him by Him reflected.

Anubis howled. The royal prophet reeled under the dazzling weight of vision, exalted—maddened?—the spirit moving in his heart: Aten Jahveh Allah God.

Riding Back on a 30-Year-Old Tractor After Pulling out the Car I Drove into a Ditch, Watching Stars and Lightning from the Northwest / Philip Bryant for Warren

Silent philosophy,
you and me
touching in the dark like two shadows married to each other.
The noise of the tractor's engine drowns out the dishonesty of our words, the sky illuminates our faces into one vision;
the moment has arrived.
The tractor is moving down the road at a speed we can both understand.
We join hands through the night like invisible brothers, twins with the same mother,
the same god,
the same body;
and it's because we drive down this dirt road together.
