1976

Rosy

Louise Glück

Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.2097 oggie, oggie, entering language, and sometimes a dog will stop and come up the walk, perhaps accidentally. May he believe this is not an accident?
At the screen welcoming each beast in love’s name, Your emissary.

Rosy / Louise Gluck

for Sandra

When you walked in with your suitcase, leaving the door open so the night showed in a black square behind you, with its little stars like nailheads, I wanted to tell you you were like the dog that came to you by default, on three legs: now that she is again no one’s, she pursues her more durable relationships with traffic and cold nature, as though at pains to wound herself so that she will not heal.
She is past being taken in by kindness, preferring wet streets: what death claims it does not abandon.
You understand, the animal means nothing to me.

Shrine / Leonard Nathan

I’ve waited for you in this room, day by day excluding what wasn’t needed until there’s only this green cushion