for hours like someone dreaming.
The two halves filled a half bushel and he sewed the sixteen pods to his hat.
Years later he’d imagine spiders falling from the sky like snowflakes, and mad dogs and angels in storms, and once in a nightmare he shot by mistake Jesus as he came through the east in Rapture light.

small world, the intricate root protruding: imagination that makes orchard trees
so close they knit inevitable distortion.
what then is the sky but delayed shadow the eye a failing
source of light?
after memory what leaf won’t seem faulty? witness poor Van Gogh at Arles sketching real orchards until “ideas were the eyes of the eyes” & the dark of the mouth, damaged night. overhead on my work-shed the gross acacia crawls the metal roof though I thin it—the West is angular & cerulean in the limbs where the bowsaw still hangs teeth
up.
