RAYMOND CHANDLER: A DESCRIPTIVE BIBLIOGRAPHY
Matthew J. Bruccoli $17.50s
Pittsburgh Series in Bibliography
Raymond Chandler has been called the “Shakespeare of hard-boiled mystery fiction.” His major novels are classics of that genre as well as novels that have permanently influenced the voice of American prose. This first full descriptive bibliography of Chandler (the first for any American mystery writer) establishes the canon and provides facsimilies of title pages, copyright pages, and dust jackets for all of the separate publications.

DASHIELL HAMMETT: A DESCRIPTIVE BIBLIOGRAPHY
Richard Layman $17.50s
Pittsburgh Series in Bibliography
The writing career of Dashiell Hammett has been one of the mysteries of modern fiction. After writing five enormously successful novels in quick succession between 1929 and 1934, Hammett simply stopped writing. But his influence has been prodigious. Richard Layman's descriptive bibliography of Dashiell Hammett provides the first complete outline of Hammett's literary career.

IMPROBABLE FICTION: THE LIFE OF MARY ROBERTS RINEHART
Jan Cohn $16.95
A sensitive biography of Mary Roberts Rinehart (1876-1958), who was respected and loved by her American reading public when few women achieved national influence. As Rinehart gained commercial success from writing mysteries, serious fiction, plays, magazine articles, and editorials, she was constantly faced with the conflicting roles of mother and wife and professional writer. This is a fascinating story of a woman ahead of her time.
