Notes on contributors and back matter, The Iowa Review, v.19 no.3, Fall, 1989
NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

VICKI ARMOUR-HILEMAN, a graduate of the Iowa Writers’ Workshop, appears for the first time on our pages. She is currently a lay member of the Maryknoll Missioners in Hong Kong.

M. R. AXELROD is the Leverhulme Fellow at the University of Edinburgh. Plans for publication of the SPIELLITERTUR essays are forthcoming.

MARVIN BELL’s New and Selected Poems was published by Atheneum in 1987. For many years a teacher at the Iowa Writers’ Workshop, Mr. Bell now lives part of the year in Port Townsend, Washington.

J. D. BROWN of Portland, Oregon, has published several essays on China, where he taught in 1984. Some of the essays appear in Northwest Review, Western Humanities Review, and The Washington Post. He has also published a book on Henry Miller (Ungar) and wooden boat building.

RALPH ELLISON, author of the classic American novel Invisible Man, should need no introduction and should have won, as Rita Dove says, “every literary prize” for this novel years ago. He has also published two collections of essays, Shadow and Act and Going to the Territory.

ALAN FELDMAN’s The Happy Genius won the 1978 Elliston Book Award for the best small press poetry collection in the United States. He lives in Framingham, Massachusetts, where he’s on the faculty of the State College and teaches writing at the Radcliffe Seminars.

LAURENCE GOLDSTEIN, a past contributor to The Iowa Review, is the author of a recent book of literary criticism, The Flying Machine and Modern Literature (Indiana University Press), and a book of poems, The Three Gardens (Copper Beech Press). He is Professor of English at the University of Michigan, where he edits Michigan Quarterly Review.

KATHARINE HAAKE's first collection of short fiction, No Reason on Earth, was recently published by Dragon Gate, one of the beautiful West Coast presses. She teaches at California State University, Northridge, and lives in Los Angeles with her husband and two young sons.

BEATRICE HAWLEY (1944–1985) was an activist for peace and justice as well as a poet. She published two books, Making the House Fall Down (Alice James Books, 1977) and Nothing Is Lost (Applewood Press, 1979), and left a substantial number of unpublished poems. Denise Levertov has edited her Collected Poems, which will be published by Zoland Books (Cambridge, Massachusetts) in the fall of 1989, and Alice James Press has established a prize in her name.

MICHAEL HEFFERNAN, a past contributor to our journal, was the Frost Fellow at the Tyrone Guthrie Centre, Annaghmakerrig, Newbliss, Co. Monaghan, Ireland, last spring. He directs the creative writing program at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville.

ALYCE INGRAM was born in St. Paul, Minnesota. She has been published in numerous literary magazines, most recently Small Pond, Wind, Jefferson Review, and Z.

FLEDA BROWN JACKSON's collection of poems, Fishing with Blood, was published in 1988 by Purdue University Press. No stranger to our pages, she also has poems forthcoming in Ariel, Pembroke, and other magazines.

PETER JUNKER, a former member of The Iowa Review staff, is now a staff writer for the Chicago Art Institute.

RICHARD KOSTELANETZ is a Renaissance man of the avant-garde. His lively experimental fiction, criticism, anthologies, audiotapes, films, videograms, and holograms attest to his thorough engagement with the world as well as the world of art.

CRAIG LOOMIS, a graduate student at the University of Toledo, has published stories in MARK, The Louisville Review, and other journals. J. M. McCool's first novel, Cooling Off, was published by Little, Brown. He lives in Oregon.

KHALED MATTAWA, born in Libya, is a recent graduate of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga with degrees in political science and economics. He says he was abducted by the English language at the age of fifteen.
DONALD SCHENKER lives in Berkeley, California. His most recent book, Up There, was published last year by Ahsahta Press of Boise, Idaho.

STEVEN SCHNEIDER is the Director of the Writing Institute at the University of Puget Sound. He co-authored two works of non-fiction, Castles in the Sand and The Athletic Eye.

GEORGE SHELTON's vivid poems make their first appearance on our pages. He lives in Tucson and is at work on a manuscript of poetry.

MARY HELEN STEFANIAK is a former staff member of The Iowa Review. Her stories appear in Redbook, Yale Review, Agni, Fine Madness, and other journals. She lives in Iowa City with her husband and three children who have never been to Yugoslavia.

NANCE VAN WINCKEL is the author of Bad Girl, with Hawk (University of Illinois Press, 1988). Her new poems can also be seen in Kenyon Review, Poetry Northwest, Black Warrior Review, and other magazines. She is a past contributor to our journal.

DAVID WOJAHN's Mystery Train, from which the poems printed in this issue are taken, will appear from The University of Pittsburgh Press in the spring of 1990. He teaches at Indiana University and in the MFA in Writing Program of Vermont College. His books include Icehouse Lights (Yale) and Glassworks (Pittsburgh), and his generous critical pieces can be read in many journals. Mystery Train's title poem is a forty-section sequence concerned with the history and lore of rock and roll.
CML seeks submissions from its subscribers on all aspects of Classical and Modern Literatures that reflect the knowledge and depth of the scholar’s own discipline used to examine problems recurring in both a Classical and a Modern Literature.

CML’s Spring issue will carry its annual BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE CLASSICAL TRADITION prepared by the Institute for the Classical Tradition. This will cover scholarship for the year 1986. You may wish to notify your library if it does not already subscribe. Previous bibliographies (5.3, 6.3, 7.3, 8.3, 9.3) are available.

Louise Erdrich

BAPTISM OF DESIRE

Poems

This mesmerizing new collection of poems by the author of the best-selling and award-winning novels, Love Medicine, The Beet Queen and Tracks, introduces a diverse assortment of saints, sinners, and mythological figures—all taking the leap of trust by which they can experience spiritual regeneration. Evident everywhere is Erdrich's capacity for finding the perfect word, the fresh metaphor that makes her work both profound and accessible.

Green Age
Alicia Suskin Ostriker
Witty, daring, and humane—new poems from one of the most praised poets of her generation. "All of us who are women poets, idol breakers and revisionists... feel a deep kinship to the work of Alicia Ostriker."
—Eleanor Wilner
November/$16.95 cloth, $8.95 paper

Captivity
Toi Derricotte
"Toi Derricotte moves us... through worlds some black women have always known, but at times suspected might live only on the insides of our own eyelids. The pain does not exceed the power."—Audre Lorde. "One of the most beautiful and necessary voices in American poetry today."—Sharon Olds
December/$16.95 cloth, $8.95 paper

Toluca Street
Maxine Scates
Winner of the 1988 Agnes Lynch Starrett Poetry Prize
"Unflinching in its clear-sighted political awareness and generous in its scope and forgiveness for personal harm. I admire enormously both the ambition and the achievement of this book."—Maggie Anderson

SHENANDOAH
THE WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY REVIEW

"Full of fictional, critical, poetic and biographical splendor."
—The New York Times Book Review

"The best literary magazines have always endeavored to discover, accommodate, and sustain good writing... Shenandoah does all three."
—Booklist

"A showcase for exceptional writing."
—The Washington Post

THE SOURLANDS
Poems by JANA HARRIS

"The voice of Jana Harris is unique in American poetry. Whether she is writing about her white and Native American neighbors in the down-and-out region of the Pacific Northwest she calls Useless Bay, or about herself as the 'bad daughter of a bad daughter,' hers is a voice of true grit—sometimes harsh, sometimes funny, always close to the bone, tart, and indomitable."

—Alicia Ostriker

"The Sourlands is a book for readers looking to be refreshed by the honesty and power of a poet without illusions, yet herself invigorated by what she sees, the writing densely woven with the particularity of earth."

—David Ignatow

"Jana Harris's voice is often balladic; the stories she tells us are poignant and fresh."

—Maxine Kumin

"Jana Harris has a singular, compassionate clarity, tells a story the only way it'll ever make sense, and knows where and who she is always. Her poems are all hers."

—Robert Creeley

What do Barbara Bedway, Robert Cohen, C. S. Godshalk, Jayne Anne Phillips, and Mona Simpson have in common?

Each writer won a Pushcart Prize with a story first published in our magazine—
Three of those stories were lead stories in separate Pushcart volumes—
Two of those stories also appeared in Best American Short Stories—
And only one of those writers was known to us even slightly when we took her story.
