Notes on Contributors

NEDA MIRANDA BLAŽEVIĆ is a Yugoslavian writer, poet, playwright, and artist. She has published several books of poetry and prose and has shown in galleries in the United States and abroad. In 1980 she won the Yugoslav National Award for prose. She is an editor on Zagreb radio and television.

CHANA BLOCH’s new book of poems, The Past Keeps Changing, will be out from The Sheep Meadow Press in 1992, and her translation of the biblical Song of Songs, in collaboration with Ariel Bloch, is forthcoming from Random House in 1993. She lives in Berkeley, California, and teaches at Mills College.

NAOMI CLARK’s second collection of poems, When I Kept Silence, was published in 1989 (Cleveland State University Press). Her poems have appeared in Prairie Schooner, Indiana Review, Quarry West, Pushcart Prize Volume III, Laurel Review, Hawaii Review, and the Alaska Quarterly Review. This is her first published story. She was formerly director of the San Jose Poetry Center and now lives in Port Townsend, Washington.

PETER COOLEY teaches creative writing at Tulane University and has published four books of poems. His next book, The Astonished Hours, will appear from Carnegie-Mellon in 1992. His work has been anthologized in New American Poets of the ’80s and in The Morrow Anthology of Younger American Poets. He is poetry editor of The North American Review.

STAVROS DELIGIORGIS teaches the classics—English and otherwise—at The University of Iowa and hopes never to master them.

JOSEPH DUEMER’s poems in this issue are from a recently completed manuscript titled “Dog Before the World,” which is also the title of a painting by Franz Marc.

ROBERT HASS is Professor of English at the University of California at Berkeley. He has collaborated with Czeslaw Milosz on the translations of his poems and is also the author of three books of poetry: Field Guide, Praise, and Human Wishes, as well as a book of essays, Twentieth Century Pleasures. His honors include a MacArthur Fellowship and the 1984 National Book Critics Circle Award in criticism.

JAY HOLSTEIN has taught in the School of Religion at The University of Iowa for the past twenty-one years and is J. J. Mallon Professor of Judaic Studies.

DONALD G. MARSHALL is Professor and Head of English at the University of Illinois at Chicago. He has published translations, essays, and reviews in the area of literary theory.

SANDRA McPHERSON's sixth collection of poems, The God of Indeterminacy, will be published by the University of Illinois Press in 1993. She is on the faculty of the English Department at the University of California at Davis.

CAROL MEYERS is professor of Bible and Archaeology at Duke University and a recipient of two NEH grants for the study of gender and society in ancient Israel. Her recent book Discovering Eve: Ancient Israelite Women in Context has just been released in paperback by Oxford University Press.

PATRICK O'LEARY's work has appeared in Poetry East, The Little Magazine, and The University of Windsor Review, among others. He lives in Detroit with his wife, two sons, and a stupid dog.

ALICIA OSTRIKER is author of seven volumes of poetry, most recently Green Age, and of the critical book Stealing the Language: The Emergence of Women's Poetry in America. Forthcoming from Blackwell in 1992 is Unwritten Volume: Rethinking the Bible.

FRANKIE PAINO received an MFA from Vermont College. Her first book, The Rapture of Matter, is forthcoming from Cleveland State University Press in 1991. She received a 1990 Pushcart Prize and was recently chosen by The Missouri Review for their McAfee Discovery feature. Her work has appeared in Crazyhorse, Poetry East, Indiana Review, Black Warrior Review, and the Louisville Review, among others.
ERIC PANKEY is the author of for the New Year and Heartwood. The poems published in this issue are from Apocrypha, published by Alfred A. Knopf in 1991.

MAX RODENBECK is a correspondent in Cairo.

GAIL SHEPHERD has poems published or forthcoming in Poetry, Prairie Schooner, the Three Rivers Poetry Journal, and The G. W. Review. She was the 1989–90 recipient of a fellowship from the Florida Arts Council and is finishing her first manuscript of poetry.

JOHN SPAULDING works for the U.S. Public Health Service in Phoenix, Arizona. His book Walking in Stone was published by Wesleyan in 1989, and he has poems forthcoming in Prairie Schooner and Yankee.

PHYLLIS TRIBLE teaches Old Testament at Union Theological Seminary in New York City. Feminism and literary criticism are among her research interests.

ROBERT WEXELBLATT recently published a collection of stories, Life in the Temperate Zone, and a collection of essays called Professors at Play, both from Rutgers University Press. He is Chairman of the Humanities Division in the College of Basic Studies at Boston University.

GUENTER ZOELLER, a former contributor, is Associate Professor of Philosophy at The University of Iowa and is vice-president of the North American Kant Society. He has published a book, Theoretische Gegenstandsbeziehung bei Kant (de Gruyter, Berlin/New York, 1984), as well as various articles on Kantian and post-Kantian philosophy.
The Iowa Review is pleased to recognize all those who, on sudden notice this year, rose to our support.

What do Laura Kalpakian, Robert Cohen, C. S. Godshalk, Ron Tanner, Barbara Bedway, Mona Simpson, and Jayne Anne Phillips have in common?

Each writer won a Pushcart Prize with a story first published in our magazine—
Three of those stories were lead stories in separate Pushcart volumes—
Two of those stories also appeared in Best American Short Stories—
And only a couple of those writers were known to us, even vaguely, when we took their work.

THE REVIEWS FOR THIS EDITION:

"This annual anthology of the best stories, essays and poetry published by small presses continues to illustrate that highly literary standards can survive despite the power wielded by profit-hungry publishing behemoths."

PUBLISHERS WEEKLY

"Once again, Henderson's annual sampling of the nation's small presses astonishes with its variety and energy... must reading for anyone interested in the present and future of American arts and letters."

KIRKUS REVIEWS

"...writers in this year's Pushcart Prize add color and meaning to our days."

LIBRARY JOURNAL

"...a regular favorite of readers. It's also a must-have for libraries, for this diversified anthology genuinely reflects the state of the literary arts in the U.S. today, unlike established, mainstream literature collections."

The American debut of an award-winning poet

"An astonishing achievement... in language that glitters ominously he muses on... the pathos and desires of our crumbling urban environment."

— John Ashbery

Excerpted in publications from The New Yorker to The Paris Review to Conjunctions, the poems in The Burnt Pages echo the distinctive voice of an emerging major poet. Of John Ash’s previous work, The New York Times Book Review said:

“This may be the most auspicious debut of its kind since Auden’s.”

“Subtle and beautiful... I read it with delight.”

—James Merrill
