Bear This in Mind

Bob Hicok

Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview
Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.4122

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.
Bear This in Mind

We are the same.

Of course this is a lie.

I've never held a wine glass.
You've never stepped on a rusty nail.

But there are similarities.

We both stand in some relation to hope,
having, needing, or despising it.

There's a good chance we've been inarticulate
at the same moments—
meteor showers, orgasms, death.

You've probably been afraid.
If I'm awake, my hands are shaking.
If I'm asleep, my hands are shaking.

We've been at the same places at the same times.
You were singing We Shall Overcome.
I let the dog's leash go.

You remember everything incorrectly.
I misplace my best intentions.
We both breathe, it's the one ceremony
we've never debated.

We are the same.

Of course this is a lie.

But so are love
and all other necessities.