MATTHEW SIMPSON HUGHES was born at West Union, West Virginia, February 2, 1863, and died at Cleveland, Ohio, April 4, 1920. The funeral services were observed at Portland, Oregon. He was a son of the Reverend and Mrs. Thomas R. Hughes. He was educated in the common schools, in Linsley Institute and in the University of West Virginia. On leaving the University he became city editor of the Parkersburg Daily Journal. In 1884, although but little past twenty-one, he achieved state-wide distinction as a political orator, speaking in the interest of the Republican party. In 1886 he was converted and at once decided to enter the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In September, 1887, he received his first appointment, that of Evan Circuit in Pocahontas County, Iowa. From that little circuit of four hundred he went as pastor to Maldon in 1888-90, to Grinnell in 1889-91, to Centre Street Church, Portland, Maine, in 1890-91, to Wesley Church, Minneapolis, Minnesota, 1891-98, to Independence Avenue Church, Kansas City, Missouri, in 1898-1908 and to First Church, Pasadena, California, in 1908-14. He was elected a bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church at the General Conference held at Saratoga Springs, New York, in 1914. From 1916 to 1920 he was resident bishop at Portland, Oregon. He was an orator of national reputation.

Aaron N. Hevesy was born at Bellefonte City, Pennsylvania, April 1, 1818, and died at a hospital in Rochester, Minnesota, April 11, 1918. Interment was at West Union, Iowa. He came with his parents to Fayette County, Iowa, in 1855, and to West Union in 1861. He attended public schools, the Upper Iowa University at Fayette and, for a short time, the State University of Iowa. He was known to be a fellow, Joseph Hobson, and with L. L. Ainsworth, and research was admitted to the bar in 1876. For a short time thereafter he was in the revenue department at Dubuque, but in 1873 he became a Solicitor of Mr. Ainsworth on the latter being elected to Congress. This partnership continued until the fall of 1894 when Mr. Hobson was elected a judge of the Peotawick District. This position he continued to hold for twenty-three years, or until his death. The estimate in which he was held by the people of his district was indicated by the fact that his re-elections were made both by the first and at every election. His record on the bench gave evidence of judicial talent of a high order. At different times he was prominently mentioned as a member of the state supreme court, and in 1910 all the counties of his judicial and congressional districts solidly supported him for nomination to that position. In 1916 he was president of the state bar association.

Horace Buxton was born in County Monaghan, Ireland, March 12, 1853, and died in Des Moines, Iowa, March 13, 1920. He emigrated to America in 1870 with his parents, who first located at Philadelphia, then at Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. In 1860 he came to Des Moines, where he worked as an engineer in a pottery, and later as a coal miner.
