LUCIA NEVAI's first collection, Star Game, won the Iowa Short Fiction Award in 1987.

JOSIP NOVAKOVICH's essay collection, Apricots from Chernobyl, was published by Graywolf in the spring of 1995, and his story collection, Yolk, in the fall. He teaches writing at the University of Cincinnati.

U SAM OEUR's poetry has been translated in Exchanges, 100 Words, Manoa, Nebraska Humanities, Artful Dodge, Green Fuse, and Modern Poetry in Translation. Translations of sections from Whitman's "Song of Myself" by U Sam Oeur and Ken McCullough have appeared in Walt Whitman Quarterly Review. U Sam Oeur has applied for political asylum and now lives in Minneapolis where he works in a factory. His book Sacred Vows is scheduled for publication in 1996.
ALICIA OSTRIKER’s most recent book of poems is Green Age (University of Pittsburgh Press, 1989). Her newest prose work is The Nakedness of the Fathers (Rutgers University Press, 1994), a re-reading of the Bible from the controversial perspective of a Jewish woman.

ERIC PANKEY is the author of For the New Year, Heartwood and Apocrypha, and directs the MFA writing program at Washington University in St. Louis.

CAROL J. PIERMAN grew up on a farm in northwest Ohio and now lives in Alabama and teaches at the University of Alabama. She has just completed a third book of poems. The latest, The Age of Krypton, was published by Carnegie Mellon University Press.

LESLIE PIETRZYK’s fiction has previously appeared in TIR. Her other publications include The Gettysburg Review, Epoch, High Plains Literary Review, Four Quarters, and The Journal.

CATHERINE RANKOVIC is an instructor of African and Afro-American Studies at Washington University in St. Louis.

ANNIE RENIERS, one of Belgium’s most prominent poets, writes in both French and Dutch. A professor of aesthetics at the University of Brussels, she has published more than twenty collections of poetry, prose, and essays. “Ask the Stones” was translated from Doorzichtig wachten / Transparent Waiting (1992).

TOM SMITH has published most recently in Snake Nation Review, Pemmican, and Beloit Poetry Journal. His volumes include Traffic and The Broken Iris. His novel is A Well-Behaved Little Boy.

ADAM J. SORKIN’s translations of poetry have appeared widely in American poetry magazines over the last decade. He works primarily in collaboration with native speakers. A professor of English at Penn State, his books include four collections of contemporary Romanian poetry.

LIANE STRAUSS lives in New York City. Her first book-length manuscript is entitled “Salome.” Her poems have appeared in Columbia and Iron.

ZONA TETI lives in Connecticut.

LEE UPTON’s second book of poetry, No Mercy, a winner in the National Poetry Series, was published by Atlantic Monthly Press. Her poems have appeared recently in Field and The Journal.

ROBLEY WILSON has published one novel, four story collections, and two books of poems. He edits The North American Review.

REBECCA WOLFF lives in Truro, Massachusetts.
CAROLYNE WRIGHT has three completed poetry manuscripts seeking publication, of which "The [Not Calm But] Collected Eulene" is the most blatantly recondite. Her nonfiction narrative, book reviews, and translations of poetry have appeared in earlier issues of TIR. A volume of translations from Spanish, In Order to Talk with the Dead: Selected Poems of Jorge Teillier (University of Texas Press, 1993), received an Award for Outstanding Translation from the American Literary Translators’ Association. Her translation of poems and essays by the embattled Bangladeshi feminist writer Taslima Nasrin, The Game in Reverse, was published by George Braziller in spring 1995.

Listening to Mozart
By Charles Wyatt
1995 John Simmons Short Fiction Award

"These are wonderful stories. Like their characters, who are often surprised by the forms their own impulses take, these stories have a stubborn honesty and a splendid, rocky oddity. Wyatt’s voice—with its wry wit and haunting images—builds a book that stays in the mind."
—Joan Silber
194 pp. $22.95 cloth

May You Live in Interesting Times
By Tereze Glück
1995 Iowa Short Fiction Award

"Glück bring us rapturous stories about men and women, prisoners of their own hearts, for whom departure is the natural medium, for whom no ordinary acts are harmless. May You Live in Interesting Times leaves an indelible portrait of an obsessive world in which both death and blue iris are always in bloom."
—Shelby Hearon
177 pp. $22.95 cloth

Swaying
Essays on Intercultural Love
Edited by Jessie Carroll Grearson and Lauren B. Smith

"Swaying blasts the reader out of routine American life to face the larger challenges of a wider world. Grearson and Smith have compiled a moving and profound set of stories that open us to a new way of viewing the intricacies of intimacy. Male or female, this book is for anyone who’s ever struggled with a relationship. This book is for anyone who’s ever tried to confront the self."

THE AGE OF WIRE AND STRING STORIES BY Ben Marcus

"The most audacious literary debut in decades—witty, startlingly inventive, funny but fundamentally disturbing, language itself held together here by whimsical bits of wire and string. Ben Marcus is a one-of-a-kind phenomenon, a comic writer of exceptional power and originality."
—ROBERT COOVER

Symplokē is a comparative literature and theory journal. Our aim is to provide the next generation of comparatists—the new voices of comparative literature—with an academic forum to share their work. We support new and developing notions of comparative literature, and are committed to interdisciplinary studies, intellectual pluralism, and open discussion. We are particularly interested in scholarship on the interrelations among philosophy, literature, culture criticism and intellectual history, though will consider for publication articles on any aspect of the intermingling of discourses and/or disciplines.
