Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview

Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.4890

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.
LOSING DEATH

in the glade of burning paper letters receive sight: the sky where birds nestle does not end with the day, swollen shadow between sails, the feeling carries flotsam, tired thoughts ever nearing decalogue, ever longer you load your thoughts into time, thinking over your past life: unsolved, wind wrinkled by the edge of an iceberg, and again you are the last left for the flame and word

ARROW

like a diphthong between the finger is the poppy seed, erupting lava catches the gesture and absorbs times,

you say: more death,
more dotted lines in life, and evening disintegrates at your touch, the axle of solitude, axis mundi, but you wake

hearing the extension of scale and listen: as if spaces rang because an arrow shivers in the vault