Notes on Contributors

ZED ANDER’s review-essay of several small press collections of stories appeared in 28/3.

LAWRENCE ARANCIO is a writer and actor who divides his time between New York and Los Angeles. Three of his plays—Sing for Your Supper, Alcimero, and Mystery in Space—have been produced in New York and Chicago. His poetry has appeared in TIR, Poetry East, Asylum, and elsewhere.

JAMES COLLINS, a poet and reviewer, lives in Cleveland, Ohio.

JAMEY DUNHAM is a graduate student of the Bennington Writing Seminars. His poems have appeared in The Boston Review. He lives with his wife Laurie in Columbus, Ohio.

JOSHUA FERRIS lives and works in Chicago. “Mrs. Blue” is his first published story.

ERIKA GENTRY earned her BA in Creative Writing from Carnegie Mellon University and her MFA from the University of Virginia. This is her first published story. She was born and raised in North Braddock, Pennsylvania and currently resides in Washington, D.C.

JEAN HARPER’s essay “Hard Play” is part of a larger project about Poor Jack Amusements, Indiana’s largest traveling carnival. In collaboration with photographer Richard Rodgers, she has traveled with Poor Jack’s for about two years. She teaches writing, intermittently, at Indiana University and has an MFA from Emerson College in Boston.

TOM HANSEN teaches writing and literature courses at Northern State University in Aberdeen, South Dakota. His poems, reviews, and essays appear in recent issues of The Literary Review, The Mid-American Review, Nimrod, North Dakota Quarterly, Poet Lore, and others.

JULIE JORDAN HANSON’s poems have appeared in recent issues of The Michigan Quarterly Review, The Journal, Press, Ascent, Passages North, West Branch, 100 Words, and Volt.

BRENT HENDRICK’s serial work, Thaumatrope, was a finalist in the National Poetry Series. Poems from the collection have appeared in Bomb, Brooklyn Review, Conjunctions, Kiosk, The Little Magazine, and Situation. He lives in Portland, Oregon.

BRIAN HENRY has edited the international magazine Verse since 1995 and is currently Poetry Editor of the Australian literary journal Meanjin. He has recent and forthcoming poems and essays in American Poetry Review, The Paris

PETER HENRY is originally from central Virginia and now lives in Portland. His work has appeared in Zyzzyva, Virginia Quarterly Review, and CutBank.

SAMANTHA HUNT recently received her MFA from Warren Wilson College. She lives in the northeast.

FLEDA BROWN JACKSON’s third book of poems, The Devil’s Child, was published this year by Carnegie Mellon University Press. She teaches at the University of Delaware.

TIMOTHY KELLY has been writing poetry and practicing physical therapy in Olympia, Washington for nearly twenty years. He also gardens and coaches Little League. He’s had recent poems in Field, Poet Lore, and DoubleTake.

TONY KNODERER lives and works in Indianapolis. This is his first published story.

KEVIN LARIMER lives in New York.

REBECCA LILLY has an MFA from Cornell and has published poems in TIR, Verse, and Press.

SARAH MANGUSO is an MFA student in poetry at the Iowa Writers’ Workshop and a frequent contributor to the Boston Book Review.

KHALED MATTAWA is the author of a book of poems, Ismailia Eclipse (Sheep Meadow Press, 1995), and the translator of two books of Arabic poetry, Hatif Janabi’s Questions and Their Retinue (University of Arkansas Press, 1996), and Fadhil Al-Azzawi’s In Every Well A Joseph Is Weeping (Quarterly Review of Literature, 1997). He was awarded a Guggenheim fellowship for 1998.

ERIC PANKEY is on the poetry faculty at George Mason University. He is the author of four books, the most recent of which is The Late Romances. Orchises Press recently reprinted his second book, Heartwood.

PRISCILLA PATON’s “Apologizing for Robert Frost” will soon appear in South Atlantic Review. She first appeared in TIR in 1984 reviewing Susan Allen Toth, Patricia Hampl, and Carol Bly. She lives and writes in Decorah, Iowa. D. A. POWELL is the author of Tea (Wesleyan University Press). His poems have appeared in Puerto Del Sol, Denver Quarterly, Volt, and Boston Review.

DANA ROESER’s poems have appeared in TIR, The Virginia Quarterly Review, Iris, Mudfish, and others. She lives in Georgia with her husband and two children.

LAURA SULLIVAN-HACKLEY is a graphic designer in Tallahassee, Florida, where she lives with her husband. Her poetry has been published in Press, Kalliope, Apalache Quarterly, The Wisconsin Review, and Plainsongs.

CLIFFORD THOMPSON is a writer of fiction and essays and the editor of Current Biography. He lives in Brooklyn, New York, with his wife, two daughters, and expanding collection of jazz CDs.

JON THOMPSON is an associate professor in the English Department at North Carolina State University. His poetry and criticism have appeared widely. “Black Market,” “Thresholds” and “Absolution” are from a work-in-progress, tentatively titled “Pictures of a Floating World,” a book-length manuscript of poems loosely based on a photo album of Japan taken during the American Occupation.

PAPPI TOMAS is a recent graduate of The University of Iowa Nonfiction Writing Program. He lives in Iowa City.

GREGORY VARGO spent last year in Potsdam on a Fulbright grant translating contemporary German poetry and teaching English. He is presently teaching high school in Vienna, Austria. His poems have appeared in Chicago Review, Prairie Schooner, and Press.

DEAN YOUNG’s new book, First Course in Turbulence, will be published this year by the University of Pittsburgh Press.

SAADI YOUSSEF was born in Iraq in 1933. He completed his higher education there. He has taught in Algeria and worked in journalism in several Arab countries. His work includes fifteen volumes of poetry, a novel, and translations of Whitman, Cavafy, Ritsos, and David Malouf. While recognition of his poetry was slow in coming, Youssef is now considered, with Adonis and Mahmoud Darwish, one of the quintessential living poets in Arabic. His poems attempt to preserve the dignity of personal experience despite, and within, a context of difficult sociopolitical realities.

ANDREW ZAWACKI is an editor of Verse. His poems have appeared or are forthcoming in The New Republic, The Yale Review, Colorado Review, Boston Review, Denver Quarterly and elsewhere, and his reviews in TLS, PN Review, Boston Review, and other journals. He directs “Poetry in Motion” for the Poetry Society of America.

HOWARD ZIMMON’s poems have appeared in many small magazines. He was also a small press publisher and owned and operated the Haunted Bookshop in Iowa City.

“Legions of imitator workshops mark the impact of Engle’s endeavor. But his fondest hope was that his workshop would be a ‘community.’ These poetic memoirs confirm his success.”
—Publishers Weekly

More than fifty years ago, Paul Engle founded the now world-renowned Iowa Writers’ Workshop. In this collection of essays by and about those writers who shared the energetic early years, Robert Dana presents a dynamic, informative tribute to Engle and the Writers’ Workshop.

symplokê is a comparative theory and literature journal. Our aim is to provide an arena for critical exchange between established and emerging voices in the field. We support new and developing notions of comparative literature, and are committed to interdisciplinary studies, intellectual pluralism, and open discussion. We are particularly interested in scholarship on the interrelations among philosophy, literature, culture criticism and intellectual history, though will consider articles on any aspect of the intermingling of discourses and disciplines.

by Diane Williams

A collection of the best of Diane Williams's bold, often hilarious stories of love, sex, death, and the family—stories that are (in the words of Bradford Morrow) "wry, sensuous, spiritual, wise, raunchy, familial . . . alive to the contradictory nuances which define our lives."
