Child Learning to Write

Catherine Barnett

Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview
Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.5732

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.
CATHERINE BARNETT

Child Learning to Write

1. At church he practices writing no. Then I teach him love.

2. When I dress him in the morning I pull on his shirt, pointing out the hole for his head, for his hands, for his entire body. What does vanish mean? he asks.

3. He keeps the ink between the lines as he jags the pen up and down, sad because he doesn’t know what he is writing.

4. Out of grief—
   ire,
   fig,
   fire.

Almost error if we could beg an o off someone.

5. Painted like a bird, labeled shrike across its wings, the shiny toy breaks. We tape it back up, matching the lines the torn letters make.

Love is like this—

Poor shrike, hurling its body against the ground.