The Award

Amelia Colwell

Follow this and additional works at: https://ir.uiowa.edu/iowareview
Part of the Creative Writing Commons

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0021-065X.6397

This Contents is brought to you for free and open access by Iowa Research Online. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Iowa Review by an authorized administrator of Iowa Research Online. For more information, please contact lib-ir@uiowa.edu.
The Award

God won an award—
A navy blue ribbon—for being awesome

God took his ribbon home,
Hung it on the fridge,
And left it there two months.
He liked the way the letters sparkled

God lost his award
One day when he was reading
A book about dreams
He checked out from the library

The water boiling for the manicotti Spilled over to the stove
So God marked his spot—Dreams about spiders—
With his blue ribbon

God had laundry to do that day so he asked his neighbor to drop his dream book in the return slot on his way downtown.

His neighbor felt obligated, since the dog had chewed a hole in God's tire swing, and God watched the kids last May when the baby was jaundiced in the natal unit
under a buzzing light.