CLARK W. HUNTLEY, teacher, farmer and legislator, died at Des Moines, Iowa, March 1, 1948; born in Lucas county, Iowa, May 26, 1866, his parents both being descendants of Revolutionary ancestors; raised on a farm; educated in rural schools and the Chariton academy, later attending the Institute of Technology at Chicago; served as a teacher in Lucas county schools and became manager of the municipal lighting plant at Chariton; engaged for a number of years in farming and livestock raising; married in 1895 to Anna L. Campbell to whom were born five children; served as secretary of the school board and as township clerk, also in the Iowa house of representatives, elected in 1910 and re-elected in 1912; was the first Farm Bureau president in Lucas county, and later a vice president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation and a member of Iowa Soil Conservation committee, of which he was chairman at the time of his death; a Republican and survived by two daughters, Mrs. Mary Larson, Chariton, and Mrs. Nancy Fuller, Des Moines, and one son, Mark Huntley, Guthrie Center, Iowa.

KARL VOLLMER, oculist and aurist, died at Davenport, Iowa, February 19, 1948; born also at Davenport, the son of Henry and Dorothea Plambeck Vollmer, November 20, 1869; graduated in 1892 from the State University of Iowa college of medicine; continued his studies in Vienna, Austria, for a year, and later served on the staff of the Royal Ophthalmic hospital in London, England for six months before returning to Davenport to begin his practice, which continued as an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist until about three years ago, having observed his fiftieth year in the medical profession in 1942; affiliated with medical organizations, local banks, professional and business institutions, and deeply interested in the Citizens Historical association; a brother of Henry Vollmer, attorney, who was mayor and congressman and died a few years ago; married to Paula Koehler in Davenport, December 1, 1897, who survives with a son, Karl K. Vollmer of St. Louis, Missouri.

ADDISON CAREY PAGE, physician, died at Mason City, Iowa, April 14, 1948; born at New Sharon, Iowa, October 3, 1874, the son of Dr. Homer R. and Harriet Freister Page, the family moving to Des Moines when he was two years old; educated in the Des Moines schools and received a B.A. degree at Des Moines Baptist college in 1898 and was graduated from the University of Illinois College of Medicine in 1898; served eighteen months internship at Cook county hospital in Chicago, Illinois; went with the Guggenheim foundation to Mexico in 1900 serving there as chief surgeon in a mining organization; returned to Des Moines in 1902 and entered upon a long career in medicine, continuing until two years ago when he retired on account of failing health, since residing with his daughter, Mrs. Hughes Bryant at Mason City; married Emma Harvison of Des Moines, who died in 1942; was past president of the Polk County Medical society, a position his father once held; a fellow of the American College of Physicians, a member of the American Medical association and a former officer of the Iowa State Medical association; a member of the Iowa state board of health from 1939 to 1945, and for many years on the staffs of the Iowa Methodist and Iowa Lutheran hospitals at Des Moines; a charter member of the Des Moines club, and also a member of the Des Moines Rotary and Wakonda clubs; surviving are the daughter, Mrs. Bryant; a son Addison Page, Jr., of Richmond, California, and four grand children.

MILES W. NEWBY, jurist, died at his home in Onawa, Iowa, November 12, 1947; born in Knightstown, Indiana, January 2, 1865; attended Penn college, Oskaloosa, Iowa, and the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, where he graduated in law; first was in the law offices of Dale and Brown in Des Moines, and then in Sac City; removed to Onawa, and was appointed district judge by Gov. Nate Kendall; re-elected four times before his retirement, serving twenty-five year; a Republican, a Mason and a Congregationalist; survived by his wife, Emma, a daughter, Mrs.
Maribelle Crawford, Onawa, and a son, Miles, Jr., New York, N. Y.

DELBERT C. BROWNING, lawyer and jurist, died at Sioux City, Iowa, November 18, 1947; born in Pennsylvania in 1879, where he was educated; received his law degree at the University of Michigan in 1905; practiced law at Sioux City, and served as justice of the peace there from 1913 to 1921; was assistant United States district attorney for the northern district in Iowa and resigned in 1935 to resume his law practice; was eight years chairman of the Woodbury county Republican committee; served as judge in the Fourth judicial district from 1889 to time of his death; was active in the Masonic bodies. His wife died at Sioux City in 1926, and he is survived by a daughter, Kathrine, of Sioux City.

WILLIAM G. VAN DER PLOEG, legislator and jurist, died at Knoxville, Iowa, April 21, 1948; born near Otley, Iowa, on a farm and lived in Marion county all his life; graduated from the law college of the State University of Iowa in 1903, and served in the Iowa House of Representatives in 1918; also as district court judge from 1922 to 1926; a veteran of World War I and practiced law in Knoxville for many years, retiring in 1947 because of ill health; first president of the Knoxville Rotary club in 1940 and also a member of the Masons; survived by his wife, two brothers and four sisters.