Spokesman for the Kingdom: Early Mormon Journalism and the Deseret News, 1850-1898

ISSN 0003-4827
Copyright © 1979 State Historical Society of Iowa. This article is posted here for personal use, not for redistribution.

Recommended Citation
Available at: https://doi.org/10.17077/0003-4827.8636

Hosted by Iowa Research Online
This book is part of an on-going interdisciplinary program of comparative frontier studies at the University of Oklahoma and contains essays on topics ranging from frontier demography and methodology to archaeological perspectives on social change.

Great North American Indians, Profiles in Life and Leadership. By Frederick J. Dockstader. (New York: Van Nostrand Reinhold, 1977. 386 pp., illus., bibliography, index, $16.95.)

Three hundred Indian leaders are included and woven into the context of their time to provide more than biographies—presents a history of the total Indian experience. Emphasis is upon the lesser known individuals—those leaders in the social, medical, artistic aspects of Indian life as well as the political.

The second volume in the Studies in Mormon History Series, edited by James B. Allen, this book tells the story of the Deseret News (founded in 1850) and its importance as the mouthpiece of the early Mormon church. It was one of the first newspapers established in the Far West and "the first successful religious daily" in the English language.

An interesting collection of 17 essays about such Middle Border writers as Rølvaag, Garland, Manfred, and Cather.

Wilderness Calling: The Hardeman Family in the American Westward Movement, 1750-1900. By Nicholas Hardeman. (Knoxville: University of Tennessee Press, 1977. 357 pp., illus., maps, bibliography, index, $14.95.)

Three generations of a Tennessee family representing 150 years are presented in their trek westward. An excellent example of what can be done with family history using the method of oral tradition and cultural transmittal.